Muslims, like other inhabitants of India, have greatly contributed to the social, cultural and political development of their homeland. Even in our struggle for freedom they made great contribution. Their participation in India’s war of independence not only is recorded in the pages of our history but gave Philip to the national movement. Among the Muslim leaders and intellectuals, who emerged in the beginning of the first half of the twentieth century and made all sorts of sacrifice for the sake of their country, Maulana Hasrat Mohani holds significant position. His impact on our modern society and culture has been very deep and wide. His role in the freedom struggle on our country is very significant. He made strenuous efforts throughout his life for the liberation from foreign rulers. The present thesis is an attempt to bring to light different aspects of political life and analyse his role and contribution in India’s struggle for freedom.
