ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First of all, I would like to express my profound thanks to the ALLAH the most beneficent and merciful, whose benign benediction gave me the ability to carry out my research work devotionally.

I, humbly express my sense of gratitude to my esteemed supervisor, Prof. (Mrs.) Naima K. Gulrez, Professor, Department of Psychology, A.M.U., Aligarh, for her motivation, guidance, frank and constructive criticism which helped me in accomplishing this task. She inculcated genuine interest in me to make this study a worthwhile attempt. Without her invaluable contributions in various forms, it would not have been possible to present this thesis in its present form. She stood by me during my difficult moments and provided encouragement and support in various ways. I shall ever to grateful to her ever ready helping nature.

I extend my gratefulness to Dr. Romana Siddique, Reader in Psychology, for all possible help for the statistical analyses of the data. Her involvement and her originality have triggered and nourished my intellectual being from which I will benefit for a long time to come.

I am also thankful to Prof. Hamida Ahmad, Chairperson, Department of Psychology, for her special advice and for providing the necessary research facilities to complete this work.

I am very much thankful to Prof. (Mr.) Saeeduzzafar and Prof.
Akbar Hussain for their constant encouragement. Thanks are due to all the teachers of the department who encouraged me throughout.

I am indebted to my parents whose continuous prayers, sacrifices, encouragement and inclination towards higher education have pushed me to this stage to accomplish the task. I owe special thanks to my sister, Mrs. Farah Khan, for her love and emotional support.

With deep sense of gratitude, I acknowledge my friend Ms. Amra Ahsan for her suggestions, fruitful discussions and support. Her constant love, care and cooperation helped me in completing the task.

Collective acknowledgments to all my colleagues for their encouragement and cooperation. I offer profound gratitude to all my well wishers and my respondents for their help and support.

Last but not the least I am thankful to Mr. Aqeel Ahmad (SLA), Mr. Mohd. Tajuddin (SLA), Mr. Aftab Akhtar (LA), Mr. Shariq Ahmad (Seminar Librarian) and Mr. Majaz-ur-Haque, Department of Psychology for the invaluable assistance during the course of this research.

Maryam Khan

Maryam Khan