FOREWORD.

I have taken extraordinary care and assiduous patience in drafting the Thesis on "THE PATTERN OF INDO-SOVET TRADE SINCE 1951". All possible efforts have been taken by me to go and collect the necessary data from the available sources.

I am very much indebted to Professor I.H. Farooqi, Dean of the Faculty of Commerce in admitting me as an External Research Scholar and directing me to work under the guidance of Professor Ishrat H. Farooqi. I am thankful to the Dean for evincing very keen interest in my progress and offering very good suggestions.

Professor Ishrat H. Farooqi, my guide, well-wisher and friend has done his utmost to bring out the best in me. Even though, he was away from the campus for over three years, he received me with kindness at Bombay and helped me to prepare the draft thesis.

Mr. H.A. Alhasami of Electrical Engineering Department and Provost of Aftab Hall, in fact helped me to a very great extent. He has made my accommodation pleasant and encouraged me.

In my fact-finding mission, I received a welcome reception in the hands of Dr. Smita Chishti, Professor of Bilateral Trade, Indian Institute of Foreign Trade.
Mrs. Maier of the Library Wing of U.S.S.R. Information Office and the Librarian of Azad Library.

Finally I thank my student and colleague Mr. R. Ravilochanan, B. A., for taking pains to type out my thesis and making it available to me in time. I am deeply indebted to Mr. V. Vedagiri, Principal of Vambalam Technical Institute for the most execution of the typing part of the work. My aged parents, wife and children have borne with patience my frequent absence from the family on this score.
