ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

No human endevour is an isolated exercise. Human intellect seeks interaction and thrives in the participative environment. The effort of understanding the phenomenon of alcohol abuse, particularly its manifestation in Gujarat presented in the form of this thesis has been an aspiration which might not have been materialized except for a variety of reasons and the inspiration, guidance, supervision and assistance from a number of persons.

I owe a lot of my guide Prof. L.R. Yagnik who encouraged me to undertake this study and provided constant supervision to the progress of my work. My sincere thanks to Dr. R.K. Gunthey for he provided me with some scarce material, tests and guided me in interpreting the data. I have no words to thank Dr. D.J. Panchal, who was constantly available for guidance and direct supervision. The effort he has put in, perhaps, matches the effort put in by me. This study for whatever it is worth is largely due to him.

I express my sincere gratitude to Principal Dr. N.S. Patel of Arts and Commerce College, Idar for his kind guidance and warm encouragement in this research study. I am extremely grateful to the library staff of Arts and Commerce College, Idar, particularly to Mr. G.J. Parmar, the librarian of our college for allowing and helping me to use their department for the library work. I am also thankful to Prof. Pranay Srivastav and Prof. Sanjay Rav for their efforts to make the thesis as much correct as possible and free from errors linguistically.

My heart is overwhelmed with feelings when I remember what my beloved mother Late Mrs. Pushpaben D. Shukla had done for me while this study was being undertaken. Even though she had studied only up to Seventh, she always dreamt that my daughter should touch the highest peak in her field. How can I forget her loving care and constant inspiration without which I could not have completed my research. I think myself privileged because I am one of those few lucky children who both of their parents have guided and motivated. Apart from my mother, my father Mr. Dalshukhram P. Shukla has always stood by me and boostered my confidence in whatever I have done in my life. He also took a very keen interest in this research work and puffed up my morale whenever I needed. I feel greatly indebted to each of my family members who have adjusted themselves in order to facilitate me during my study and have contributed in their own way to complete this study.

It is high time for me to acknowledge my deep gratitude towards Late Dr. Deepak Bhatt, Department of Psychology, Vidyanagar who initiated me to indulge in this ‘unprofitable business’ as higher studies are usually called. Even though he is not among us today, his invisible presence and encouraging words have worked for me as a Light House throughout this journey.

Only when you have an elderly sister like Mrs. Daxaben T. Shah that you realize the proverbial truth of what ‘a friend, philosopher and guide’ really stands for. He support and contribution in completion of this study is very vital and unforgettable.

I would like to thank Tejas Panchal and Satvinder Banvet for data processing and printing with the computer. They are always ready, even at the cost of their studies, to do my work. I am immensely indebted to the samples without whose co-operation this study would not have been completed.
