Acknowledgements

This work is a result of collective efforts of many individuals to whom I am deeply indebted in terms of their intellectual, moral and other necessary logistic supports without which it would not have been possible for me as a working woman to complete this field-study based doctoral work within five years of time bearing the triple burden of my domestic chores, teaching at my college and working for my doctoral thesis.

First and foremost, I acknowledge with deep gratitude the intellectual support and guidance and also, encouragement that I got from my two supervisors - Dr. Byasdeb Dasgupta of Department of Economics of University of Kalyani and Dr. Anup Kumar Dhar of Ambedkar University, Delhi. Their persistent encouragement as well as relentless intellectual assistance remained the primary source of inspiration for me to pursue this work on women’s empowerment.

At the personal level, I received many advices and encouragement from my senior colleagues at my college and other academic institutes and friends including Professor Pradip Ranjan Chakraborty, Professor Ashish Nandi, Dr. Ritabrata Tarafder, Nandini Chakraborty, Professor Noorjahan Khatoon, Professor Maumita Ghosh, Professor Samsunnessa Khatun, Professor Swati Mollah, Dr. Anwar Hossain, Professor Anuradha Chakraborty, Professor Soumitra Halder, Professor Arijit Roy, Professor Debesh Mukherjee, Dr. Debasis Sarkar, Professor Kishore Roychoudhury, Professor Shahnawaj Begum, and Dr. Abdul Rashid.

Discussions with Sarbari Chakraborty, Tarun Mukherjee, Kakoli Ganguli, Shila Mondal, Dilruba Khatun, Prafulla Ghosh, Sushil Das, Tanmay Dutta, were of immense help to me. At the time of submission of this work I am dearly feeling the absence of Late Professor Mangalendu Narayan Roy in this world, who always kept on encouraging me in my academic ventures despite all odds.

I have received immense supports and helps from various people at the grass root level while doing my field surveys in the selected rural and urban areas of the district of Murshidabad without which it would remain impossible to complete this work in time. I cannot name all of them individually here. However, I express my deep gratitude for the help which I got from them.

The valuable comments received from the academic experts and the resource persons and the other participants at the two Research Scholars’ Workshops - one at Visva Bharati, Santiniketan and the other at the Department of Economics of University of Kalyani helped me a lot to shape my ideas regarding women’s empowerment in general and I remain grateful to all of them.

I express my sincerest gratitude to all the faculty members of the Department of Economics of University of Kalyani whose valuable comments on my work helped me a lot to write this doctoral thesis. I also remain thankful to all the non-teaching staff of the Department of Economics of University of Kalyani who helped me a lot in the administrative jobs associated with this work. Similarly, I remain thankful to all the non-teaching staff and the officers of the University of Kalyani without whose kind help in administrative and related matters it would not have been possible for me to complete the thesis in time.

My family is my living space. I express my heart-felt gratitude and love as well to all the members of my family – my parents, my husband – Dr. Debangshu Ghosh (who helped me a lot in developing contacts at the grass root level for my field works), my sister and nephew and also the household workers and drivers as they spared their valuable time for me so that I could finish my work in time. My little daughter – Anupriya – remained the greatest source of inspiration for me to do this work on women’s empowerment. I wish the world which she will inherit will ultimately be free of gender-based oppression against any kind of gender. My love and affection for her always gave me the inner strength to do this work.

And, finally I remain solely responsible for any error and omission in this work – especially if I have failed to thank some people individually, who helped me immensely like others in this five-year long work on women’s empowerment.
