Chapter – 4

Limitations Of The Study

Inefficiency in the distribution of funds by the State Governments is reflected from delays in sanction and release of grants to the educational institutions. Such inefficiency not only adversely affects the growth and development of educational institutions, but also adds to their financial crisis.

This study is limited in that it is a critical look at the current and immediate past data and literature related to infra-structural utilization. This is not a formal experiment comparing the infra-structural utilization and the population of students with poor personality. The literature reviewed is by no means exhaustive of the available literature in this area of study.

The proposed recommendations are based on feedback of respondents. Hence, it may not be made applicable to all stakeholders. The results may vary from school to school and also on acceptability of the recommendations.

All information is based solely on the sample survey results and literature reviewed and best practice within the field of education.
