I am thankful to the eminent scholars and critics whom I have referred to and quoted in this thesis.

I express my profound sense of gratitude to Mr. Saiyid Hamid, Former Vice Chancellor, A.M.U., Aligarh --- a great mentor of mine, a sage, a visionary, a minaret of light -- for being a source of inspiration to me. He gave me a vision of wholeness, of indivisibility of self, of knowledge, of humanity. The very idea of personality occurred to me by his well integrated and harmonious personality, his writings (criticism, essays, poetry) and speeches. He gave me a spiritual guidance and showed me the way. I have no words to express my thankfulness to him for recognising my mettle and evincing genuine and deep interest in my ideas concerning this thesis. My love for Persian poetry and Iqbal was enhanced by him.

I am indebted and immensely thankful to Professor Harish Raizada, Retd. Professor, Department of English, A.M.U., Ex-Visiting U.G.C. Professor, Avadh University, Faizabad, my revered teacher and one of my mentors. He went through my thesis with interest step by step offering valuable suggestions specially about the technicalities and the format of this thesis. Occasionally he appreciated my efforts which he found to be enlightening. This appreciation is suggestive of his own deep love for learning and knowledge, scholarship and insight. Whenever I felt demoralised he enhanced my self-confidence and morale and sincerely encouraged me. I got benefited by the concept of wholeness presented in his writings specially on Mulk Raj Anand.

I am also highly thankful to Professor S.P. Singh, Head, Department of Sanskrit and Ex-Dean, Faculty of Arts, A.M.U., Aligarh at present, for enlightening me by his deep knowledge of The Vedas and The Upanishads. Once he guided me in writing an article on "The Status of Women in The Vedas" (Which was a radio talk). He had interpreted many 'mantras' and "sutras" and appreciated my love for Sanskrit language and literature and the Hindu Scriptures. My meagre knowledge of Sanskrit (one compulsory paper at the undergraduate level) helped me a lot to be benefited by this great scholar of Sanskrit. He highly appreciated some of the chapters of this thesis read before him. His book, Sri Aurobindo and Jung gave me an insight into Sri. Aurobindo's idea of personality, of the vision of the Great Mother.

My deep sense of gratitude is for Professor Asloob Ahmad Ansari, Ex-Head, Department of English, A.M.U., my revered teacher at the Postgraduate level, for inspiring me by his profound and vast knowledge, his superb teaching and his critical writings. His journals - Miscellany (English) and Nagd-o-Nazar (Urdu) have been a constant source of light to me. Iqbal Essays and Studies, edited by him, has been constantly used by me in writing this thesis. He is a pivot round whom there are many stars radiating his deep knowledge and vision -- Professor Harish Raizada, Professor Usmani, Professor M.H. Khan, Professor Syed Wiqar Husain, Professor Iqbal Hasan etc. I am extremely thankful to him for providing a rare article of Iqbal on Al-Jili on my request which proved to be of great benefit to me.

My thanks are due to Professor Sisirkumar Ghosh, Ex-Head, Department of English at Shanti Niketan, a saintly figure, an eminent critic, scholar and journalist. He visited A.M.U. a few years back and delivered lectures on "Mysticism and Literature" in the Department of English. Those lectures emphasised that "Literature is a sub-culture of mysticism". During a brief conversation after the lectures he appreciated my sincere response to his point of view which increased my self-confidence concerning the use of mystical standards for the study of literature.

I must acknowledge my thanks to Professor M.H. Khan, present Chairperson, Department of English, who, somehow or the other, directly or indirectly, gave his valuable advice and suggestions which helped me a lot. As he is my brother I am unable to express my deep sense of gratitude to him for what I owe to him in my evolution as a scholar and teacher.

My thanks are also due to Ms. Natalia Prigarina, an eminent Russian scholar of Iqbal who, during her academic visit to India arrived at A.M.U. for delivering lectures on Iqbal's Perfect Man. During her lectures and discussions it occurred to me that various aspects of the Perfect Man (-human ) of Iqbal i.e. Universal Love ( عشق ), Consciousness, ( ُوُسَى ) Unconsciousness ( ُوُسَى ), selfrealisation ( فکرشناسی ) having been inspired by Arabi, Rumi and Jili etc. have affinities with those presented by Virginia Woolf. Ms. Natalia's deep interest in Oriental Studies greatly enthused and inspired me.

I am thankful to Professor Tara Chand Rastogi, Director, Iqbal Institute, Gwahati, for enlightening me during a seminar on Iqbal held at A.M.U. He, during a brief conversation with me on the subject of my thesis, referred to his article "Zinda Rud-A Perspective on Iqbal" published in Iqbal Review, and advised me to read it. This article benifited me a lot. His book Western Influence in Iqbal (referred by him) also proved to be of great advantage to me.

My thanks are also due to Mr. A.D. Moody whose book, Virginia Woolf, made me see the idea of wholeness, of "complete person" in Virginia Woolf. I personally expresed my thanks to him during his visit to the Department of English, A.M.U.

Thanks are for all those with whom I have discussed certain aspects and problems concerning this thesis.

I am very thankful to the Principal, A.M.U. Women's College, Prof. Ms. Zakia Siddiqui and the A.M.U. Vice Chancellor, Prof. M.N. Faruqui for very generously granting me Study Leave (for two years) for accomplishing this task.

I am very thankful to the staff of the Seminar Library of the English Department, Maulana Azad Library, Women's College Library, Seminar Library of Theology Department for their generous help. Thanks are also due to the J.N.U. Library and Delhi University Library for readily helping me. My thanks are also due to the staff of the Library of the Department of Comparative Religion at the Institute of Islamic Studies, Jamia Hamdard, New Delhi.

I must thank my late mother whose oft-repeated phrases have been echoing in my mind ("every 'grace' has a 'glory', every 'glory' has a 'grace' "on each and every leaf there is sealed the name of God" etc.). She was a well-read person. She shaped my personality and made me what I am — a lover of knowledge and learning and a seeker of the Infinite.

Last, but not the least, my thanks are also due to my niece Asma Beg, my sister Ms. Durdana Beg, Naghma, a student of mine as well as my children Humayun, Saima and Faridoon for helping me in final proof reading.

I shall fail in my efforts if I do not thank Messrs Blessing Computer Center who are, not only responsible for shaping and formatting my thesis, but have been bringing out all technicalities to my notice as well throughout the process of this venture.

While revising this modest attempt of mine I have come to realise the gaps in my scholarship. I accept responsibility for flaws and errors.

Without the help of all those persons mentioned above this thesis of mine would never have been written. Hence a relation between soul and society.
