In writing this thesis entitled: "Cooperative Farming and Its Impact on Rural Industries of India With Reference to Uttar Pradesh", I have been greatly benefited by my visit to U.S.S.R., Poland, Czechoslovakia and German Democratic Republic, where I got the opportunity of studying on-the-spot the system of large-scale farming on Socialist lines. This gave me an insight into the problems of farming, which have been in some respect similar to our problems. The present work is an attempt to study the potentialities and problems of Cooperative Farming with a view to analyse their role in increasing agricultural productivity and development of village and small industries.

For the completion of this work I owe a debt of gratitude to my teacher, Professor Q.H. Farooquee, Dean, Faculty of Commerce, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh, who taught me the subject of Cooperation and inspired me to undertake the research. Without his guidance, help and encouragement, this work would have never seen the light of the day. He gave me the liberty of encroaching upon his valuable time frequently. I have great pleasure in acknowledging my profound gratitude to him for the completion of this work. However, the errors of judgment, if any, are entirely mine.
I am also indebted to Dr. Otto Shiller, Professor of Agricultural Economics, Stuttgart, Hohenheim, West Germany, Professor Dr. Laslo Volko of Washington State University, Washington, for their encouragement and help by supplying me their publications relevant to my study. Professor Victor Evanovich, Dean, Faculty of Foreign Cooperatives, Moscow Cooperative Institute, Moscow, gave me the liberty of discussing with him the system of Collective Farming of Soviet Union with reference to their applicability to India. I am extremely thankful to him.

My thanks are also due to Mr. M.A. Qureshi, Commissioner and Secretary, Agricultural Production and Rural Development, U.P., Mr. M.S. Haqq, Director, Planning Research and Action Institute, Lucknow, Mr. R.C. Sharma, Deputy Director, Consolidation, U.P., Mr. Hasan Luqman, Project Officer, Aligarh, Mr. K.C. Verma, Dy. Registrar (Cooperative Law), U.P., Mr. Misra, Dy. Registrar, Cooperative Farming, U.P., Mr. V.P. Sharma, Education-cum-Publicity Officer, Department of Cooperation, U.P., Mr. Abdul Wasay, Assistant Registrar, Cooperative Societies, Aligarh, who provided me with the literature and first-hand information on the subject. My frank discussions with these officers greatly helped me in analysing the problems in their right perspective.

I am grateful to my friends and colleagues, who have helped me by offering their suggestions and providing encouragement. I am indebted to my wife, Abida Samiuddin, Lecturer, A.M.U., Aligarh, who has not only helped in preparing notes and going through the diagrams but also kept my morale high during the most strenuous hours of this work. She was a source of encouragement and lent her support at all stages of this work.

I am also thankful to Dr. F.H. Bivvi, Mr. S. Agha Hasnain Jafri, Dr. Rafiqe Beg, Mr. Nahfoozur Rahman and Mr. Mohd. Asif Ali Khan for their assistance.

I thank the National Cooperative Unions of U.S.S.R., Poland, Czechoslovakia and G.D.R., who made my stay comfortable in their respective countries and arranged my visit to a number of collective farms situated in different regions of their respective countries. The National Cooperative Union of India has also greatly contributed in the completion of this work.

I would be failing in my duty if I do not express my thanks to various authors like Dr. H. Laxmi Narain, Dr. K. Kanungo, Chaudhry Charan Singh, A.H. Khusro, A.N. Agarwal and Q.H. Farooque, whose works have contributed to the understanding of my problem.

My thanks are also due to Mr. Hashnoor Alam Raza, who typed the manuscript and tables and Mr. Saleemuddin Ahmed for preparing maps and charts.
