PREFACE

In completing this thesis, I have obtained help from a number of sources, both inside and outside the country. Most important amongst them all is the benefit of my association with a person of Professor F.H. Risvi's eminence, experience and learning without whose help and encouragement this work would not have been completed. I have great pleasure in acknowledging my profound gratitude to him.

I also owe a deep feeling of gratitude to Professor G.L. Reubor, Head, Department of Economics and Social Sciences, University of Western Ontario, London, Canada, who helped me in formulating the ideas which I could fruitfully utilise in this work. My thanks are also due to Professor W.H. Somerneyer, Netherlands Central Bureau of Statistics, the Hague, Professor Wilson, University of Harvard, Professor H.H. Watkins, University of Toronto, Professor Alvin Marty, Columbia University, with whom I discussed various problems pertaining to my work off and on and who gave me valuable advice.

I shall be failing in my duty if I do not express my deep sense of gratitude to the Department of Economics and Development, Government of Ontario, in general and Dr. Lehner in particular for giving me all the facilities that I needed.

I am personally indebted to Messrs. Ravindra Nath Jha, Mohammad Ali, Javed Alam Khan and Masood Alam Baig, who came to my rescue in every moment of stress and strain.

I also take the opportunity to thank all the eminent scholars whose work I have utilized in this thesis.

The assistance of business executives both Indian and Canadian, who provided materials for this work is also gratefully acknowledged.

Mr. Rakesh Kumar prepared the maps and charts and Mr. Naimullah undertook the burden of typing the thesis for which I thank both of them.

Lastly, for her cooperation I owe my wife a special debt of thanks.

I am thankful to all, but the shortcomings that remain, however, are entirely my own responsibility.
