The utmost co-operation and patience shown by her, at every stage, were also instrumental in the completion of this project.

Thanks are due to Dr. S. Narahari Pandit, Professor of Statistics, Osmania University of Hyderabad, for his guidance in the main statistical analysis of the data.

Appreciation is extended to the artist, Mr. Nagasheyana of Bangalore, for his deft handwork while working out some of the figures in this volume, and also to Mr. Ravindran from International Crops Research Institute for Semi-Arid Tropics, Hyderabad, who computerized the rest. The staff of the Department of Statistics and computer programming, ICRISAT, are also thanked for their assistance in the statistical analysis of data.

If not for the untiring efforts of Mr. Govinda Bhat, of National Textiles Corporation, Bangalore, the tables of the report would not have gained their present shape. His efforts are appreciated for the same, as well as for typing part of the thesis, alongwith Miss Indumathi of Bangalore, who also typed a major portion of the report.

The investigator takes this opportunity to thank the Andhra Pradesh Agricultural University, Hyderabad, for having granted her study leave to pursue the Doctoral Programme. Gratitude is also extended to the Indian Council of Agricultural Research, New Delhi, for the financial assistance provided in the shape of the Senior Teacher Fellowship.

The sincere co-operation of the urban poor families of Hyderabad, in providing the desired information, is thoughtfully appreciated, as, otherwise the study would not have materialized.

Last but not the least, the investigator specially thanks her husband, Mr. K.M.R. Nambiar, for the continuous encouragement, co-operation and assistance during the course of this project. A major role was evinced in the encouragement and understanding shown by the parents, other family members, and the little daughter of the investigator, without which, this investigation would have come to a standstill. Their instinct, patience and tolerance are also memorably acknowledged.
