ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This study has been the outgrowth of ideas initiated and inspired by Dr. Kirankumar M. Joshi under whose supervision and guidance the work has been completed. I owe my gratitude to Professor Kirnakumar M. Joshi. For guiding my thoughts throughout the development of the study.

I thank Prof. M. D. Mohite, Dean, Faculty of Commerce, Prof. K. R. Shah, Head, Department of Business Economics and Prof. D. S. Pathak for their valuable comments throughout the entire work. I am also indebted to my teachers Prof. V. N. Kothari and Prof. N. M. Pandya, Department of Economics, Faculty of Arts, for their kind encouragement. I am also grateful to Mr. Sanjiv M. Joshi, Lecturer, Department of Economics, Faculty of Arts, for giving me the benefit of many discussions which clarified my doubtful and obscured points. I am also thankful to my wife for providing timely encouragement and assistance as and when required.

My special thanks to Mr. Harshad Patel, Director Computer Centre, M. S. University of Baroda, Baroda, for accomplishing all the needed Computer work in time. Last but not the least I record my thanks and gratitude to M/s SUN computer consultancy, for an otherwise painstaking and excruciatingly dull job of typing-retyping on Computer the entire thesis with characteristic sincerity.

PRAMOD M. SHAH