ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I express my deep gratitude to my supervisor Prof. O.P. Juneja, who not only provided thoughtful guidance to me but also acted as a friend and philosopher. I fondly remember Prof. Dennis Duffy, University of Toronto and Mrs. Mary Ann Duffy for their guidance, help and hospitality in Toronto. I thank Prof. Frank Birbalsingh, York University for the warmth he showed and the valuable suggestions he made while discussing this project; Prof. Barbara Godard, York University for her generosity in offering timely help in locating people and books, and Prof. Rashesh Thakkar, York University for making me feel at home in Toronto. I also thank Prof. Clara Thomas, York University; Dr. Susan Minsos, Edmonton, and Dr. Teresa Hubel, London, Ont. for providing me with their articles and theses on Duncan. I thank the Principal, A.R.S.D. College for granting me study leave which helped me to pursue my work without hindrance. My special thanks are due to Dr. R.C. Kapoor, Delhi University, who very painstakingly went through the draft and offered constructive suggestions. I thank Dr. Chandra Mohan, Delhi University for the encouragement he offered at every step; Dr. M.F. Salat, M.S. University for the help and assistance he offered in Baroda and D.K. Pabby, Delhi University for his help in locating references. My thanks are also due to Mrs. Renu Juneja for her hospitality, care and concern during my numerous visits to Baroda.
I express my gratitude to Shastri Indo-Canadian Institute for awarding me the Graduate Student Fellowship which enabled me to visit Canada to collect valuable research material, without which this study would not have been possible. I must also mention the help and courtesy extended to me by the staff of Scott Library, York University; Centre for Canadian Studies, Baroda and the Shastri Indo-Canadian Institute Library, Delhi. I am grateful to University Grants Commission for giving me a Minor Research Grant.

I must mention the role of my coffee club, where my friend R.M. Sharma very thoughtfully provided me with endless cups of coffee (the intellectual's brew) at Ashok Hotel, Delhi; whereas S.K. Batra and Ashok Dhall provided moral support. I also thank Rajni Salaria of Giriasho Overseas, who showed immense talent in processing and printing the thesis.

Last, but not the least, I acknowledge the patience shown by my wife Savita and children Megha and Anubhav, who have quietly waited for me to finish my work and get back to them.
