PREFACE

The following pages contain my thesis on The Cooperative Movement in India. This book is the result of research work carried on under the guidance of Dr. S. Chandrasekhar, University Professor of Economics, M.S. University of Baroda, Baroda during the last two and a half years (from June 1951 to October 1953).

I am very much obliged to Dr. S. Chandrasekhar, University Professor of Economics for his kind and sympathetic help and guidance enabling me to finish this thesis. I am also indebted to the Baroda University authorities for awarding me a "Research Studentship" for the last two years.

I am very much grateful to the kindness of several distinguished men who gave me the necessary information in connection with the thesis. I must particularly mention Shri V.L. Mehta for enlightening me on some points regarding the provision of finance through cooperatives under the First Five Year Plan when he delivered a lecture on "The Place of Cooperation under the First Five Year Plan" at the Cooperative Training College, Poona on the 21st of April, 1953. My thanks are due to Shri D. A. Shah, Principal, Cooperative Training College, Poona for giving me all types of necessary facilities and information. I wish to express my gratitude to the Librarians of the University Library, Baroda, the Library of the University School of Economics and Sociology, Bombay, the Library of the Indian Society of Agricultural Economics, Bombay, the Library of the Servants of India Society and Gokhale Institute of Politics and Economics, Poona and Library of the Cooperative Training College, Poona. I should also express my thanks to all the Foreign Embassies and Commercial Legations that have supplied me information regarding the development of the Cooperative Movement in Europe and United States.

Finally, I want to express my gratitude to all the officers of the various cooperative institutions and Government Cooperative Departments which I visited to collect the material for the thesis. At the end of the thesis, I have appended a list of about 100 societies that I visited in the State of Bombay.
