ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

With great pleasure, I take this opportunity to acknowledge my sincere thanks and debts of gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. R.P. Vadhera, Reader, Department of Education, NEHU, Mizoram Campus, Aizawl for his invaluable guidance, constant encouragement and unfailing help rendered to me at all stages of my research work. Without his sincere advice, devotion to the work and sympathetic understanding of my limitations, it would not have been possible to bring out this thesis in its present form.

I offer a deep sense of gratitude to the Librarians and/or staffs of: Documentation and Information Centres, NIPCCD and NCERT, New Delhi; National Social Science Documentation Centre, ICSSR, New Delhi; Prof. S.S. Basavanal Library, Karnataka University, Dharwad and K.K. Handiqui Library, Gauhati University, Gauhati for allowing me to make use of their books and other materials. I am very thankful to the Department of Pre-school and Elementary Education, NCERT, New Delhi for giving me very useful materials free of cost; and also to the various authors and experts in the field of ECE whose materials, ideas, recommendations and suggestions I have borrowed and used for judging the position of pre-schools in Mizoram.

My sincere thanks are also due to the Government of Mizoram, Department of Education and Human Resources Development, for allowing me to avail of two-year study leave; and to the Scholarship Board, Higher and Technical Education Department, for giving me financial assistance, both of which have enabled me to carry out the work.
I must not fail to acknowledge my gratitude to the Principals and teachers of sample private pre-schools, anganwadi workers of sample public pre-schools, staff of DIETs, SCERT and AWTC of Mizoram and the sample parents for their co-operation and warm responses to the questions put to them during interview.

Lastly, I would like to place on record my special thanks to my family members especially to my husband Mr. H. Lalrinliana, who gave me time and moral support throughout this study.
