ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The history of education in Meghalaya started with the coming of the British. It was the foreign missionaries who introduced formal education in the Khasi, Jaintia and Garo hills. In about one hundred and fifty years since its introduction, formal education had made considerable progress in the state. This dissertation attempts to describe the origin and progress of formal education in the State of Meghalaya.

I am greatly indebted to my Supervisor, Prof. J B Bhattacharjee, for his guidance and encouragement, without whose help I would not have been able to submit my dissertation. His patience, generosity and calmness in nature is exemplified in the unstinted support he extends in course of my writing the dissertation. I also extend my gratitude to the authorities at Assam Archives and Department of Historical and Antiquarian Studies, Guwahati, West Bengal Archives and National Library, Calcutta and the National Archives of India, New Delhi. I express my thanks to the Librarians and staff of the North Eastern Hill University, Carey Library, Serampore and the Council of Baptist Churches in North East India, Guwahati. I acknowledge my gratitude to Mr. S Nongbri, Principal of Raid Laban College, for permitting me to pursue this course and for his confidence in me.

I am especially grateful to my parents for their moral support and inspiration, without whom I would not have been able to complete the dissertation. I express my gratitude to Malthus S Sangma, my brother-in-law, for translating the Garo primers and books needed for my study. Finally, my thanks go to my brothers and sister who patiently bear with me and to my little niece, Ninette and nephew, Alerick for their little soothing and relaxing diversions when I need the same.

I put on record my thankfulness to the teaching faculty and staff of History Department for all the help they had extended. I also extend my thanks to all my colleagues at Raid Laban College for their moral support and helping me in any way they can.

Finally, I thank Almighty God for His abundant blessings and sustaining Grace during this study and throughout my lifetime.
