ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

To Dr. S. Homchaudhury, Professor and Head, P.G. Department of English, NEHU, Shillong, I owe a heavy debt of gratitude for not only consenting to be my supervisor but also remaining throughout the course of this research study, 'a friend, philosopher and guide', in the true Wordsworthian spirit of the expression. If he was a source of constant encouragement, he was also simultaneously not lenient to the flaws of logic in my argument. It is he who has reminded me all the time of the necessity of submitting the wild flights of my fancy to the rigours of disciplined scholarly work. I would be failing in my duty if I do not mention here the pains he took to upgrade the thesis to the level it has attained now. I must say that this study has greatly benefited from the philosophical insight and literary acumen that he brought to bear on it. My debt to him is, therefore, immeasurable.

I would also like to put on record here my deepest sense of gratitude to Dr. E. Kazumdar, Reader in English, NEHU, Medziphema, who not only started me on this project but also agreed to be my co-supervisor, thereby becoming a proximate source of help to me. It is he who saw to it that the continuity of my work did not get hampered because of the non-availability of books and journals at a remote and secluded place like Medziphema. He offered his help ungrudgingly in bringing books from National Library, Calcutta, whenever he would be on a visit there. In addition, I had access to some of his personal collection of books, for the purposes of this study.

This study has been possible because of the help and support received from various libraries in India. But for them it may have dragged on and on. Mr. S.P. Mukherji, Asstt. Librarian, NEHU SASARD Library, Medziphema took personal interest in getting whatever books he could acquire for the purposes of my research. Mr. J.C. Beniwal, Librarian; Dr. A.S. Chandel, Reader-cum-Deputy Librarian; Ms. Majow, Deputy Librarian; and Mrs. Veena Chandel, Lecturer-cum-Asstt. Librarian at NEHU Central Library, Shillong were all forthcoming in offering their unstinted help and cooperation. Mr. Kundu and Mr. Chakroborty, Asstt. Librarians at NEHU, Kohima also spared no efforts in providing necessary books. Finally, I must also express my thanks to the staff of National Library, Calcutta, who provided a honeycomb of information to me.

During the course of this project I also had the privilege of useful and enlightening discussion with teachers of eminence such as Dr. Ajay Kotwal, Lecturer in English, Jammu; Dr. Anil Raina, Lecturer in English, Panjab University, Chandigarh; Dr. B.R. Rao, Professor of English, Punjabi University, Patiala; and Dr. (Mrs.) Rita Saldanha, Reader in English, Jammu Univ., Jammu. I was also fortunate in having the postal advice of Dr. M.J. Stannard, Lecturer, Department of English, University of Leicester, Leicester, Britain, who made me consider the originality and validity of my approach to Waugh.

I would also like to express here my profound sense of gratitude to Dr. M.C. Joshi, Dean, SASARD, NEHU, Medziphema who lent all kinds of administrative support during the period of my research and especially, for meeting my supervisor at Shillong. I found him ever ready to extend any kind of support that was within his powers.

It would be an act of ingratitude not to record here the advice and encouragement received from many well-wishers and friends. I must thank Dr. R.L. Walli, Professor in Political Science, NEHU, Shillong for reminding me continuously of the urgency of beginning my research work as early as is humanly possible. Mr. R.S. Thakur, Lecturer in English, NEHU, Medziphema was one other person who did not allow me to lose hope of completing this work in time. I benefited much from his scholarly erudition at the beginning of this research project. Apart from them, I would like to thank all my friends and colleagues at NEHU, Medziphema who bore with my self-imposed seclusion, understandingly.

It would be most unseemly on my part not to mention here my deep sense of gratitude to my parents for whose encouragement I may not have ventured so far from home in order to progress academically. I would also like to put in here a note of appreciation for the encouragement I received from my father-in-law who is himself a distinguished academic and understands very well the rigours of research. However, no superlatives that human language affords can convey my indebtedness to my wife, Dr. Veena Dhar, Lecturer in Economics, NEHU, Medziphema, who has been not simply a house-keeper but also a guide easily accessible on matters of research methodology. It is she who saw to it that I did not fritter away my time in domestic chores and suffer the want of encouragement 'when the going was (not) good'.

Finally, I would like to put on record here my appreciation of the commendable job done by Mr. S.D. Soni who took immense pains in seeing to the excellent get up of the thesis.
