ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am extremely grateful to my supervisor, Prof. Mrinal Miri whose guidance, encouragement and understanding saw the completion of this work. Prof. Miri has been my teacher and my guide for the last ten years and in him, I see not only academic excellence but also undying concern to train up young thinkers from this North-eastern part of our country.

Teaching in the University is an invaluable experience for me in the last three years. I express my gratitude to Prof. (Mrs.) S. Miri, Head of the Department of Philosophy, and all my colleagues in the Department, for their inspiration to me while writing my thesis.

I will fail in my filial duty if I forget the moral and financial support of my beloved Grandfather (late) Welcome Gayang. I am also grateful to my mother and father who are always prayerfully supportive in all my endeavours particularly in this Ph.D. thesis.

I also want to express my thankfulness to Jubanlak Sutnga of Welham Girls' High School, Dehra Dun, for sharing with me her insight gained through her inter-cultural experience — she being the only Khasi-Pnar student in the above mentioned prestigious school.

My gratefulness also goes to all my church members in Jowai and to all those I have taught in the Theological Extension Study Programme (TESPRO), for their prayer-support.

I am grateful to Dreamsilian Thubru for her untiring help in typing the first drafts of my thesis and to Mr. Joseph F. Khongbuh for the final typing.
All along, my beloved wife, Baljuda, Lecturer, K.N.G. College, Jowai, has been unwavering in her efforts to see the completion of this thesis. Words can only very inadequately express that which is more deeply felt and shared. My loving children, Azalea and Gamaliel also have a share in this achievement through their excited anticipation of its completion.

Finally, there are still a large number of friends and associates, whose names are not mentioned here, but who have been sources of help and encouragement. To them, I express my heartfelt thankfulness.
