ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I wish to place on record my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. D. Peter, my Guide, for his sustained inspiration, unfailing expertise, seminal ideas and correction of taste. My generous borrowing from his mind and heart will ever remain an unpayable debt.

I am grateful to all the members of the Nursing fraternity who responded to this study; and to the Medical Superintendents and Administrators of the Government, the Institutional and the Private Hospitals in Kanyakumari district for their active support and co-operation.

The Librarians and staff of the Madras Institute of Development Studies, Madras; the Mother Teresa University for Women, Guindy Campus; the Centre for Development Studies, Trivandrum; the School of Nursing, Kanyakumari Medical Mission (C.S.I) at Neyyoor; and the School of Nursing, the Catherine Booth Hospital, Nagercoil readily extended their facilities for study and research. I thank them for their great professionalism.
To thank Ms. Geetha Christopher now is to recall those rewarding moments of togetherness spent in interviewing the sample respondents and discussing the conditions of their life. The Rev.C. Samji, Christian Institute for the Study of Religion and Society, graciously lent a collection of very useful books on Women's Concerns. Mr. Cyril Kanmony, my Faculty colleague, helped me in the verification of calculations. I am indebted to each one of them.

I thank G. Janin Jaji at the Research Centre for his patient proficiency in typing; V. Moni and J. Suresh Kumar of the Digital Networks, Nagercoil for their professional excellence with the lay-out; and D. Jebaraj of the Rainbow Press for the skilful binding.

Zubin and Zenobia, my children, bore with sympathetic understanding the brunt of maternal neglect during my preoccupation with academic perseverance. With them and Mr. Winston Somervell, my 'help meet', I thank God for God's abiding grace and bounteous mercy.
