Acknowledgements

Not to fulfill a cold formality mechanically, but to foster a meaningful gesture whole-heartedly, I would like to acknowledge my sense of gratitude to all those who have been of some assistance, help, and guidance to me, directly or indirectly, in the conception and execution of the present thesis.

I am grateful to my teacher and research supervisor, Dr. K. Ramakrishna Reddy, Professor of Business Management, for his keen interest in my research programme and constant encouragement. I am grateful to Prof. P. Subha Rao, Head of the Department, Prof. L. Venugopal Reddy, Dean, Faculty of Management, Prof. B. Ramachandra Reddy, Chairman, Board of Studies, and Dr. Venugopal Rao, Faculty of Management, for the cooperation and help.

I am deeply beholden to Sri. Appa Rao Machiraju, Founder Director, College of Insurance and Financial Planning, Hyderabad, for initiating me into insurance studies, providing me with most of the secondary sources and, above all, for being a source of inspiration for me at all the stages of my research work. I am indebted to his wife, Mrs. Radha, for her affectionate care and loving concern. I owe a deep debt of gratitude to Prof. B.S.R. Rao, former R.B.I Professor of Finance, and Head of the Department of Economics, Gokhale Institute of Politics and Economics, Pune, for providing plan of work, critical comments, and invaluable insights that have gone a long way in shaping my thesis.
I am thankful to Mr. V. Mallikarjuna for his methodological help, and Mr. P. V. K. Kishore for his technical assistance. My thanks are due to Dr. Babaiah, Associate Professor of Economics, for his timely help and guidance. I am indebted to Sri. G. Guru Babu, and his noble wife, late Smt. Aruna Kumari, for their immense help in my fieldwork and for their affectionate hospitality. I express my grateful thanks to Mrs. Kamala Rajah for her genuine concern for me and for making my stay in Hyderabad convenient and pleasant. I am grateful to Dr. T. Nagamani and her husband, Sri Bhanvarlal I.A.S. for their bounteous support. My special thanks are due to Mrs. K. Manju and Ms. K. Bhavani for their loving care and kind hospitality.

Words fail me to express my deep sense of gratitude to my parents, Prof. K. Venkata Reddy and Dr. N. E. Bhagyavathy, without whose spontaneous and ready help I could not have taken this venture. The warmth of love and affection of my sisters, Dr. K. Srujana, Dr. K. Sumana, and K. Sahana, and the affectionate concern of my brothers-in-law, Dr. M. Bruhaspathy, Sri Satish, and Sri G. R. Babu sustained me throughout my work. Their human life values are far greater to me than any economic estimates.

Producing a thesis is a considerable strain not only on the researcher, but also on the members of family. I thank my loving husband, Pushkar, from the bottom of my heart for helping to bear this strain. But for his benevolent gesture, positive attitude, unfailing support, and constant encouragement I would not have been able to take up my research work, let alone completing it successfully. I shall be failing in my duty if I do not acknowledge my debt to my own sweet, little daughter, Nikki, for those blessed intervals of quiet in which this work was carried out. I am very grateful to my father-in-law, Sri Janak Raj Sharma, and my mother-in-law, Smt. Raj, for their sympathetic understanding of my situation and for their moral support. I am thankful to my brother-in-law, Hementh, and his wife, Vandana, and Lokesh for their love and affection towards me.

To all I express my thanks and gratitude, reserving, however, the caveat that I alone am responsible for any errors.

K. Spandana