Praises to Almighty Allah who has taught man which he knew not. It is easy to enjoy all the laurels alone for the Herculean task of completing a doctoral thesis but I must admit that there were certain individuals and institutions, Indian as well as International, who helped me in the completion of this thesis. As an honest scholarly duty I must acknowledge their support and encouragement.

I owe my sincere gratitude to my respected supervisor Dr. Shagufta Imtiaz for her unflinching support and guidance throughout the course of study. Woman of few words, she taught me how faith and patience can overcome barriers in any sphere of life. Truly, she has been my source of inspiration and a pillar of strength whom I can never forget.

I also wish to acknowledge the guidance and support I received from Professor John C. Miller, University of Collarodo, USA, whose visit to the department proved extremely beneficial to all the students and elevated our academic careers. I own special thanks to him for his support in my Foreign Language Teaching Assistant Programme (FLTA) under Fulbright Scholarship. I want to mention the help and guidance offered to me by Professor A. R. Kidwai in giving us the chance to interact with resource persons.

I am grateful to Dr. Ghazwan, Department of Linguistics, who inspite of his busy schedule spared time to help me with the statistical data.

My heart goes out to my Mummi-Papa (parents), my loving sisters Zainab (elder) and Zehra (younger), my uncles, and sisters- in- law who always remembered me in prayers, put up with my tantrums, and have offered me immense support from far away. My special thanks to my husband, Mr. Ashraf Danish Alvi, for the cooperation, trust, and freedom that I needed in completing my work.

My heartfelt thanks are due to Du bios Library, University of Massachusett; Five Colleges, Amherst; British Council, New Delhi; Seminar Library, Department of Linguistics, AMU, and Maulana Azad Library, AMU for the books and materials that I consulted and facilities that I made use of in contemplating on my drafts as they developed. My sincere appreciation is also extended to all the three schools and 150 students and 9 English teachers who participated in the study.

I remember with affection my friends Sana Maryam, Asma Javed, Seema Ahlawat Hooda, and Totaram Gautam who showered their unconditional love, affection, and understanding that enabled me to complete this work amidst difficulty.

There were others without whose help I could not have completed this thesis. Although I cannot thank them all individually, they all are part of my memory and an indispensable part of my highest academic achievement.

Dated: ___________

(Zeba Farooqi)