ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to express my profound sense of gratitude to Dr. Mathew Joseph, my Research Supervisor, for extending to me his immense and unassuming scholarship and his unequivocal critical perspicacity. This research study would have been virtually impossible without his careful guidance and inspiration.

I am deeply indebted to Anna Deavere Smith for her affection and her willingness to provide manuscripts, video clippings and books from her personal collection. My experience in her classes and workshops was unique.

This study is completed with a Fulbright Fellowship from the Fulbright Foundation of America to conduct research in various academic institutions in the United States. I would like to place on record here my sincere gratitude to Fulbright Foundation and its Indian counterpart, United States Educational Foundation of India.

Prof. Clandia Orenstein of the Theatre Department, Hunter College, CUNY, New York functioned as my Academic Advisor in the United States. I owe her personally a deep debt of gratitude for her illuminating suggestions, her vigorous guidance and especially for my initiation into the American academic world. I remember gratefully Mira Felner, Jonathan Kalb and Marvin McCallister for their unbounded generosity. I express my heartfelt thanks to Carol Martin, who brought Anna Deavere Smith's works into the sharp focus of academia in the early nineties, for her kind consideration and help. I may also thank eminent Professor Richard Schechner for his willingness to spend some time for me.

Most of the material used in the writing of this dissertation was obtained from the world renowned libraries such as Lincoln Centre for the Performing Arts Library, New York Public Library, New York University Library, Hunter College Library and the Library of Congress, Washington D.C. I remember gratefully the services rendered to me by these libraries.

I take this opportunity to express my immense gratitude to Dr. Rajiv K. of Arizona State University, my former colleague, for his patient and encouraging discussions, crucial suggestions and relevant references. His valuable suggestions and prompt help have been instrumental in giving this dissertation its final form.
