CHAPTER -6

RECOMMENDATION
RECOMMENDATION AND SUGGESTION

The study should be conducted in different cities and some other aspects should also be considered for the study.

During Biochemical status study not only Haemoglobin and lipid profile but other biochemical parameters should also be considered.

Impact of all available contraception methods should be taken into consideration.

Detailed study on emergency contraceptives and injectable contraception should also be considered for the study.

Size of samples should be large.

To get more detailed and accurate information of all available contraception methods time period for the study should be more.