

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I take this opportunity of expressing my heartfelt gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. Prof. M.R. Chaudhuri for encouraging me to complete this treatise. His fountain of inspiration has not only inspired me to undertake this study, but his valued help, useful suggestions and noble guidance enable me step by step to the completion of my work also. He introduced me to so many scholars and eminent persons who also has helped me a lot, he also permitted me to consult his vast library which saved my time and labour. My regular participations in the monthly and annual seminar organised by 'Industrial Situation in India' - a quarterly Journal edited by Dr. Chaudhuri gave me the scope to improve immensely my knowledge of presentation and writing. I also cannot but pay my homage to the kind and compassionate efforts of Dr. Chaudhuri in introducing me to so many illustrious geographers, who helped me profusely with their wise suggestions and giving me scope for participation in the monthly and annual seminars organized by 'Industrial Situation in India', a quarterly journal edited by Dr. Chaudhuri himself. The help I got from all these cannot be overlooked.

I deem it also appropriate to mention in this connection the help rendered to me by the authorities of Burdwan University, Department of Geography - to all of of whom I express my sincerest gratitude.

I am also profusely grateful to Sri B.Ghatak, who with all caution and care, managed to type my papers and without whose sincere help my efforts should have turned to naught.

I also consider it my pleasant duty to acknowledge the spontaneous encouragement and inspiration I have received all through my work from my parents, my inlaws, my friends, my husband and my sweet Kaustubh and Poushali that augmented the zeal to carry on my research work and help me reach a state of satisfaction.
