I acknowledge my debt of gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. Kuntala Lahiri-Dutt, Reader, Department of Geography, The University of Burdwan, for her constant supervision, constructive suggestions, valuable references, critical assessments and helpful guidance during the preparation of this Doctoral thesis. I have interrupted her personal life and snatched away her precious creative moments in preparing this dissertation. She has been a source of inspiration in my life, especially in academic endeavours. I am also thankful to Dr David J. Williams, Principal Scientist, Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization, Australia, for his valuable suggestions and critical assessments of the text.

The graceful suggestions of my respected teacher, Dr Nageswar Prasad, Professor of my department. He was always helpful and never thought twice before helping me with innumerable valuable suggestions. In particular, his suggestions on mapping were very useful. Dr Champa Mitra, also Professor of my department and my respected teacher, has helped to build up my basic concepts in agricultural geography. My dear teacher, Dr Kamala Bhattacharyya, Reader in Geography, too has helped me a lot in completing my present academic enterprise. I am also thankful to my friend Mr Sanat Guchhait, now a Lecturer of this department. All my other teachers were always encouraging; Professor Nikhil Krishna Dey, Ms Manjushree Basu, Reader, Dr Sunando Bandopadhyay, Reader, and Dr Giasuddin Siddiqui, Reader, are notable among them. My sincere thanks go to all of them. What I have learnt is mostly due to them. Here mention must be made of Late Professor Arabinda Biswas who provided constant inspiration ever since I became a student under him. Without him, I could never have become what I am today.

I gratefully remember the graceful suggestions of Dr Sudipta Adhikari, Professor of Geography, Patna University, regarding the formulation of the questionnaire and sampling techniques. My sincere thanks also go to Dr Narayan Chandra Jana, Research Associate, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi and Miss Gopa Samanta, Lecturer in Geography, Mankar College, Burdwan. I also thank all the teaching-support staff of our department for their kind encouragement. Ms Srinupa Das, Librarian of our Department, always allowed me to explore through the shelves and smilingly accepted my many requests for books.

I thankfully remember the cooperation and help of Mr Tarit Ghosh, Secretary of Rice Mill Association, Mr Tushar Majumdar, Secretary of Chira Mill Workers Association, and Mr Kallol Ghosh for their valuable information regarding rice milling and chira milling industry.

I am personally indebted to Mr Kripamoy Halder and Mr Bidhan Ghosh for their company during my survey of rice mills under difficult circumstances. I express my sincere thanks to different organizations, which supplied some very useful information and maps to me. The organizations are District Industrial Centre (DIC), Officials of Shramik Bhavan, Rice Mill Owners Association (RMOA), Burdwan, District Agricultural Office (DAO), Burdwan, Office of the Burdwan Municipality, Office of the District Engineer and Burdwan Zilla Parishad.

I am also thankful to Mr Golam Mustafa, Department of Botany, the University of Burdwan, for his expertise and cooperation during photography. I also extend my thankful hand to Mr Ram Narayan Bhagat, the enthusiastic rice mill owner, Ma Tara Rice Mill for his valuable suggestions regarding the prospect of the rice milling industry.

I also acknowledge my sincere debt of gratitude to my parents, Mr Bholanath Nandy, retired teacher of Burdwan C.M.S. School, and Mrs Raj Laxmi Nandy, without whose inspiration this work could not be extended. I also express my sincere gratitude to my elder brother Mr Bidyut Nandy and my sister-in-law Mrs Mitali Nandy for their constant encouragement. My beloved nieces – Miss Minakshi Nandy and Miss Baishakhi Nandy both helped me in many ways in the final stage of this work.

I want to acknowledge here my debt for the untiring co-operation and assistance I received from my husband, Mr Debnath Palit, Lecturer in Botany, Darjeeling Government College. He came into my life towards the end of work of the thesis, but his contribution has been immense whether at home or in the field during the surveys. I also acknowledge my debt of gratitude to my father-in-law Mr Nakur Chandra Palit and mother-in-law Mrs Puspa Palit for their constant encouragement and cooperation for completion of my thesis.
My esteemed colleagues, Mr Uday Kumar Jash and Ms Aparna Mukhopadhaya have also helped me to complete the present project through constant encouragement and friendly countenance. Mr Pranab Roy, Headmaster of Galsi High School and Mr Sumoy Roy, Headmaster of Guskara P. P. Institution, read an earlier draft of the thesis and made necessary suggestions in improving my grammar. I am thankful to Mr Prasun K. Gandopadhyay (now in ITC, Netherlands) for his starting of thesis typing. Finally, I am also thankful to Mr Papan Chatterjee, a computer professional, for shaping this doctoral thesis into the present form and special thanks to Mr Pranjit Roy for his computer graphics.

In spite of the help and encouragement of the above-mentioned persons and organizations the responsibility of any error remains essentially mine.

Dated, 13.11.2002
Burdwan

Papia Nandy