This thesis is the out-come of an intensive research work carried out among the Tagins inhabiting Upper Subansiri District in Arunachal Pradesh to understand disease and treatment. The primary data were collected from three Tagin villages in Daporijo area of the district during 1999 and 2000.

The work is the out-come of not only my own perseverance but also interest, guidance, co-operation and health extended from various sources.

The study was undertaken under the supervision of Dr. Birinchi K. Medhi, Professor and Head, Department of Anthropology, Gauhati University. First of all, I express my sincere gratitude to my supervisor Professor Birinchi K. Medhi, without whose kind guidance and persistent encouragement, my thesis would have remained a distant dream. His inspiring words and constructive criticism provided me with the zeal to carry on the study.

During the course of the study, I have taken the opportunity to discuss various matters pertaining to my study, with the teachers in Anthropology, Gauhati University. Their suggestions and comments have helped me a great deal. I am extremely grateful to all of them. My sincere thanks are due to Dr. R. R. Sen Gupta, Retired lecturer, Pandu College, for his kind help and guidance at different phases of my work.

I shall fail in my duty if I forget to admit my indebtedness to all the people in the study area who helped me in various ways during the course of my field investigation. It is not possible to remember all the names who helped me in the field. However, I would like to acknowledge Mr. Tapu Dulom, priest of the village Sikarijo I; Mr. Take Dulom and Mr. Tagu Yekar, priests of the village Sikarijo II; Mrs. Yarup Kodak and Mr. Paglo Kodak, priests of Kodak village; Mr. K. C. Bora, Head
Master, Sikarijo Primary School; Mr. Tapor Yekar of Pogarijo village, Mr. Tajum Dulom of the village Sikarijo I and Mr. Taku Yekar and Mr. Mania Dulom of the village Sikarijo II, for their help and co-operation.

It will be relevant here to mention the names of Dr. T. Gongo, Superintendent, District Hospital, Daporijo; Dr. S. Mukherjee, 77 RCC GREF MI ROOM, Daporijo; Mr. Manik Bui, Secretary, Tagin Cultural Society; Mr. Lardik Kare, JE (PWD); Mr. Same Timba, Inspector, D.R.D.A., Daporijo; Mr. S. Chakraborty, District Research Office, Daporijo and Mr. Taroo Dui of Daporijo for their help and suggestion in different stages of this research work. My sincere thanks are due to my family members for their constant encouragement.

I must also put on record my deep sense of gratitude to the staff of K. K. Handique Library, Gauhati University; the District Librarian, Daporijo; Chief Librarian, State Central Library, Itanagar and the librarian of the Research Department, Itanagar, for their active co-operation for providing me with relevant and indispensable information.

I extend my thanks to MULTISOFT, Pandu, Guwahati – 12 for printing the script of the thesis. In fine, I do take this opportunity to thank all those, who knowingly or unknowingly contributed to this humble venture.

While I am deeply indebted to all the persons who helped me in numerous ways in the field work and preparation of the thesis, I would like to emphasize that I alone am responsible for all the errors to omission and commission that might have remained in the body of the thesis, despite my best efforts.
