PREFACE

At present the Universal Declaration of Human Rights has got wide recognition at the world level. Many of the countries have included the human rights instruments in to their constitution. When it comes to enforcing the right against government and public authorities, the principle and procedure seem to need further development.

When we refer to the same problem in India, the violation of human rights by the state agencies and the public authorities are on the rise. If the violation is committed by the enforcement agencies, it seems more acute.

This dangerous situation resulting in gross human rights violation or defective action of the state agencies has to be curtailed by introducing changes in the law relating to state liability and by introducing an effective implementation mechanism. Certain remedial measures are suggested to rectify the defects existing in the present system.

My guide and supervisor, Dr. K. Vikraman Nair, Director of the School of Indian Legal Thought, M.G. University, Kottayam has been the central power behind this work on LIABILITY OF THE STATE IN TORTS: WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO HUMAN RIGHTS VIOLATION. So I express my heart felt thanks to him for his sincere guidance.

I owe my sincere thanks to Dr. V. D. Sebastian for his sincere and erudite guidance for the completion of the work. Words fail me when expressing the debt and gratitude which I owe him for his inspiration, encouragement and co-operation in the completion of this thesis work.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to Dr. K. M Usha, Reader in Law, Govt. Law College, Thiruvananthapuram for making certain suggestions. My student Dr. V.R. Jayadevan, Sr. Lecturer and Smt. Rekha Venugopal, guest Lecturer of Govt. Law College, Ernakulam had checked the manuscript and made necessary corrections for which I express my sincere thanks.

My sincere appreciation goes to Sri. P.J.Wels and Mr.M.R. Venugopalan the Librarians of Govt. Law College, Ernakulam and the other staff of the library Mr. P. Raman kutty and Nimmy George; Library staff of the School of Indian Legal Thought, M.G. University Kottayam, Librarian and staff of Cochin University of Science And Technology, Cochin, Library staff of the Trissur Govt.
