ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The whole thesis would not have come into being without constant support and inspiration of my research guide and who was also my teacher during my Masters' and, he is Dr. Dipankar Banerjee. His occasional outburst of anger seeing my laziness and bad handwriting forced me to rethink, certainly about some of my lacunas. Above all, he always discussed with me frankly about the various problems which I had to face during the course of my study for final draft of the dissertation. He always extended his helping hand to me, whenever I required. I got huge inspirational words from the Prof. Priyam Goswami, who also taught me in my Masters and whenever I met her, she always asked me about the progress of the work. Prof. Ranju Bezbaruah gave me a good support when I did read the seminar paper for the final registration and he said that the theoretical study would not do any harm in explaining the facts if it could be justified with sufficient evidence. I will be thankful to him always, for his meaningful suggestions to me in different aspects of the work. My teachers in the History department of the Gauhati University all of them were generous enough to give their suggestions to my work.

Rana Pratap Behai, gave me a long commentary over my work in a Workshop Session (NOIDA) and his valuable suggestions deeply helped me to overcome certain complexities. Prabhu Mohapatra's generous words to me was another positive influence of the meeting with him and infact, both Behl and Mohapatra are involved in writing about the labour system of colonial Assam. Bodhisttava Kar, (Fellow of the Centre for Social Sciences, Calcutta) also gave me a good commentary with his use of some constructive criticism about the methods of my work, when I met him in a International Workshop Session (Pune). I was fortunate enough of hearing the excellent lectures of the historians and the social scientists like Sabyasachi Bhattacharya, Partha Chatterjee, Dilip Simeon, Prabhat Patnaik, Nirmal Chandra, Chitra Joshi, Neeladri Bhattacharya, Janaki Nair, Navin Chandra, Anjan Ghosh, Pradip Datta, Amalendu Guha and all of them have indirectly contributed immensely to my intellectual development.
My friends, Dr. Amrit Sen of Santiniketan, Abhishek Mitra of Jadavpur University, Rajesh Komath of the M.G. University Kerala, Debjyoti Das of the London University, Manjil Hazarika of the Leiden University, the Netherlands gave deep encouragement and discussed with me about the various issues concerning of our study areas without any reservations. I am grateful to all of my friends.

My room mates in my hostel were constant companion during the last year of my work and they showed great kindheartedness by avoiding any gossiping. I will be ever grateful to them. My seniors Anjali, Laxmi, Bina all showed their love towards me and took serious interest in my work and I am indebted for their help in different aspects of my work. My supervisor's wife, Purabi Banerjee also asked me frequently about the progress of my work whenever I went to their house and I am also thankful to her.

My family members, especially brother Prakash and my only sister Popy have worked as a force of energy and inspiration in my hectic life as a research scholar. My parents (Baba and Ma) have been playing the role of the demigod in respect of giving moral and spiritual support during the whole course of my career. I will be ever grateful to them and save love and respect; I have nothing to offer.

At last I am thankful to also to the staff of the different libraries and archives which I visited during the course of my research work. Particularly, I am thankful to Uttam Bathari (Asst. Director of the ICHR, NERC Guwahati) for his wide support to my work and the precious collections of some rare books in the ICHR library helped me immensely. Especially, the donated books of Prof. B. Dutta Roy and Prof. S. K. Barpujari helped me superbly to fillup the void in my research interests. As I have written the dissertation using only fountain and ball pens during the first draft of my dissertation and after that I have given it to the computer typings and all necessary works have been completed by the efforts of the D.T.P. operators Bipul, Amal and Joy and for their patience and forbearance, I will be grateful to them.
