Acknowledgements

I express my gratitude to Professor P. Kotoky for his guidance throughout my present study.

Grateful acknowledgement is made to Dr. (Mrs.) Sunanda Sinha-Bose of the University of Chicago, and Mr. Pranab Bhattacharyya of the Duke University, for kindly supplying me much material for my work. But for their ready help, it would not have been possible for me to complete the work, because up to date critical works on Koestler are not yet easily available in India.

Mrs. A. Dumra, a former Deputy Librarian of the British Council Library, Calcutta, has made me indebted to her by supplying me photocopies of books and journals from the British Library Document Supply Centre in London.

My thanks are also due to the Librarian of the National Library, Calcutta, and to the Librarian and staff of the Krishna Kanta Handique Library, Gauhati University, for their prompt assistance in my work.

It is a pleasure to recall all the help I got from several of my friends and close relations to whom I owe a sincere word of thanks.

Abha Bhattacharyya.
