

Acknowledgement

At the very beginning, I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude and indebtedness to my Supervisor Dr. D. K. Limbu, Associate Professor, Department of Anthropology, North-Eastern Hill University, Shillong, Meghalaya, for his tireless service and guiding me with his valuable suggestions at every stage of my work without which the study would not have been in the present form.

I am thankful to Professor T. B. Subba, for his constant help and unending support during admission for my PhD programme, I am forever indebted to him for his encouragement and inspiration.

Heartfelt gratitude to Professor R. Khongsdier, Head of the Department of Anthropology and to all the Teachers and Non-Teaching Staffs of the Department of Anthropology, North-Eastern Hill University, Shillong, friends, well wishers, parents and my family members whose contribution has helped me a lot to complete my present thesis.

I express my sincere gratitude to the University Grants Commission, New Delhi, for awarding me Rajiv Gandhi National Fellowship (RGNF) for SC/ST which enables me to pursue this study without any financial constraint.

I am sincerely grateful to the Deputy Commissioner, Jaintia Hills District, F. R. Kharkongor, IAS, for granting me permission intending to conduct the fieldwork among the Pnars of Jowai town and Sanaro village of Jaintia Hills District.

I am thankful to the Headman of Sanaro village, Shri. C. Syntem and the Local Heads of five different localities of the Jowai town, Shri. A. Sumer, Shri. T. Kyndiah, Shri. P. Lyngdoh, Shri. D. Suiam and Shri. M. K. Siangshai, for granting me permission and extending whatever help they could offer during my fieldwork and having made this thesis a success.

I am very much thankful to the people of Jowai town and Sanaro village for their simplicity, generosity, hospitality and hearty cooperation during my data collection.

Besides, my gratefulness goes to my dearest friend Mr. Letminthang Khongsai who stands beside me in making this thesis a complete and successful one.

Above all, I thank God for loving and blessing me and enabling me to accomplish this study successfully.
