ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am deeply indebted to Professor Umesh Deka, Rabindra Nath Tagore Professor and Director, GUINEIS, Gauhati University, and Dr. Pradeep Kumar Jain, Associate Professor, Dept. of Business Administration, Gauhati University, my Research Guide and Supervisor, whose constructive guidance, continuous encouragement and meticulous reviews have been instrumental in making this study possible.

I would like to place on record my special thanks to Shri A. Krishna Kumar, M.D. of SBI, who promptly permitted me to carry out this dissertation. My acknowledgements would be incomplete without thanking Shri Alok Kr. Chowdhury, GM, SBI whose constant support in organising the logistics and nudging me towards completing the work was of immense help.

Finally, my appreciation and gratitude to the scores of people in Gauhati and elsewhere with whom I confabulated in getting ideas and thoughts for my dissertation. It may not be possible to name everyone, but some like Shri P.S.Patra, DGM SBI, Shri Tilak Das, Shri Sandeep Khaitan, and Shri Man Singh, AGM & Risk Rater, SBI and his team, need to be acknowledged.

My sincere and heartfelt thanks to Kumud, my wife who bore the brunt of my non-availability, while completing my dissertation, for her continuous and unconditional support and my children Shantanu and Tushar, and both IT specialists, and Judith my daughter in law, for having helped me in organizing the report. It would have been extremely difficult without their contribution.
