ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

At the very outset, I express my deep sense of gratitude to my guide Dr. Dipak Kumar Sharma, Reader, Department of Sanskrit, Gauhati University, for kindly suggesting me the topic of the present dissertation. His guidance, continued encouragement and inspiration helped me a lot during the preparation of the present work. Without his encouragement and guidance it would have remained an unknown event for me.

I am highly thankful to the learned teachers of the Department of Sanskrit, Gauhati University, for their inspiration and suggestion. I am also extremely thankful to Mrs. Meena Kumari Devi, my ‘Gurupatri’ and Lecturer in Economics, Suren Das College, Hajo, for her constant cooperation, encouragement and help.

I express my gratefulness to my father, Prof. Raghudev Goswami, (Rtd.) Head of the Department of Sanskrit, Handique Girls’ College, for his valuable advice and also to my mother Smt. Gayatri Goswami for relieving me of the domestic work during the period of the preparation of the present dissertation.

I take the opportunity to offer my thanks to my younger brothers Dhruba and Amar, who helped me in the preparation of this dissertation. I am thankful to those individuals and institutions wherefrom I borrowed books as and when necessary. I am thankful to Shri Kali Charan Das, for preparing the print copy with meticulous care.

Last but not the least, I offer my heartiest thanks and gratitude to my husband Malin Chandra Bhagabati, who carried the household responsibilities single-handedly during the days of my more serious studies.
