INTRODUCTORY OBSERVATION vi - x

PREFACE x - xxiii

A glimpse to the culture of Bengal and reflection on the Bengali literature. Bengali literature in the pre-caitanya age. The spirit of 19th century and its reflection on the literature of the day. The spirit of Bankim’s, Rabindrana’s and Sarat’s literature. Tarasankar as a successor of previous thoughts and ideas. The special out-looks of Tarasankar’s creative-spirit. Fatalism in the novels of Tarasankar. The sign of decadance in the novels of Tarasankar. The literary skill of Tarasankar. Tarasankar’s novels on the light of his own philosophy of life.

CHAPTER - I. 1 -14

OUR TRADITIONAL CONCEPTS OF WOMEN AND THE REFLECTION OF THESE CONCEPTS ON OUR LITERATURE UPTO TARASANKAR.

Women as living representation of "Prakṛti". The ideal of Indian womanhood. The Bengali women on the back-ground of Bengalee Social setup. Motherhood, the special mark of Bengalee womanhood. Our traditional concepts of womanly-love. Love in vaishnabic thoughts and literature.
Women of Bankim's literature. Bankim's attitude to love.
The different types of women of Rabindra literature.
Rabindranath's attitude to love as reflected in his writings. Women in the novels of Saratchandra. Womanly-love in the concepts of Saratchandra. A short comparative study of the attitude of Bankimchandra and Saratchandra regarding women and womanly-love.

CHAPTER - II

DIFFERENT TYPES OF WOMEN OF TARASANKAR'S EXPERIENCE AND THEIR ROLES IN HIS LITERATURE.

The preparative stage of Tarasankar's literary life.
"Ekāl" and "Sekāl" as he mentioned in his autobiography.
His experiences of (1) a quarrel-some lady of his village, and her reflection on the women of his literature (11) Swarna Dainee and her reflection on the women of his novels. (11) Kamalini vaishnabi and her shadow on the women of his novels. (1v) The women of Dōme and Bagdi caste with their image on his literature. (v) Irani and Gipsy girls and their projection in his literature. (vi) Charu, his girl friend and her image on the women of his literature. Mother of Tarasankar and her impact on the ladies of his novels. The paternal aunt of Tarasankar and her influences on the women of his literature. The wife of Tarasankar and her image on the ladies of his novels.

CHAPTER - III

STUDIES ON THE NOVELS OF TARASANKAR WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO WOMEN CHARACTERS.

KABI (1350) 29-51
Thakurjhi, 30
Basan 39
Wife of Rajalal 49
Masi 51
GANADEBATA & PANJAGRAM. (1349, 1350) 52-76
Durga 54
Padma 65
Bilu 73
Jaya 74
Mother of Chirupal 75
Wife of Chirupal 76
Rangadidi 76
HASULI BANKER UPAKATHA. (1354) 77-92
Suncad 78
Pakhi 81
Basan 86
Kalosasi 88
Gopalibala
Subasi
Mother of Nayan

APROGA NIKETAN (1358)
Atar Bou
Manjuri
Manju
Sita

SAPTAPADI (1364)
Rina Braun

ABHIJAN (1353)
Fatki
Nilima

YOGBERASTA (1367)
Santi
Nila

DHATRI DEBATA (1346)
Pisima
Ma
Gouri

KALINDI (1347)
Suniti Debi
Hemangani Devi
Uma

NILKANTHA (1340)
Giri
RAIKAMAL (1342)
CHAPTER IV

WOMEN IN TARASANKAR'S NOVELS.

Section - I

DIFFERENT TYPES OF WOMEN OF HIS NOVELS:

(a) THE REPRESENTATIVE WOMEN OF DIFFERENT SOCIETIES.

Pisima, the representative of aristocrat power-loving woman of Zaminder family. Rurga, the woman-representative of Dome and Bagdi caste. Sunchad, Rina, etc, the other similar women of his novels.

(b) AUTHOR'S FASCINATING CHARACTERS.

Bilu, Jaya, Swarna, Uma, etc, the women created after the likings of Tarasankar.

(c) THE TYPES OF WOMEN WHO WERE SUBMITTED TO VARIOUS TESTS AND OBSERVATIONS.

(d) SYMBOLIC AND ALLEGORICAL CHARACTERS.

Manjuri, Atar bou, Nila, and other similar character of his literature.

(e) SOME PHOTOGRAPHIC CHARACTERS OF HIS EXPERIENCE.

Wife of Rajalal, Mother of Nayan, and other similar women in his literature.

Section - II

WOMEN IN DIFFERENT ROLES IN THE NOVELS OF TARASANKAR.

(1) MOTHERLY-WOMEN IN HIS NOVELS.

The nature of motherly-women of his literature. The influence of his mother on the motherly-women of his literature. Padma, Giri, Fathi, etc, the complex characters representing the thoughts and impulses of the feeling of motherhood. Our traditional attitude to the mothers of the society and its reflection on that of Tarasankar's novels.

(11) HOUSE-WIVES IN THE NOVELS OF TARASANKAR.

The position of house-wives in the Bengali society. The general nature of the house-wives of his literature. The objectivity of such characters in the tale of the novels. The idealistic views of author behind the creation of such characters.

(III) THE LADIES-LOVE IN THE NOVELS OF TARASANKAR.

The grace and glamour of the ladies-love of his literature and the special attitude of author behind the addition of such grace and glamour. The different environments for the ladies of his novels and how he utilised these environments in revealing the real nature of womanliness. Tarasankar's concepts of love and how the idealistic and realistic views of love acted simultaneously on the ladies-love of his literature.

The influence of folk-literature on the ladies-love of his novels. How he brought the love, moralities and social rulings into an argument in the case of his literary ladies-love. Fatalism in his literature.

CHAPTER - V

CONCLUSION 227-231

Review of previous discussion, Author's own philosophy of life. His literature on the back-ground of his own philosophy of life. Summation of previous discussions.

BIBLIOGRAPHY 232-240