ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

During the course of my studies for this work, many of my well-wishers and friends came to my help. But for their good wishes, help and unstinted co-operation, this work would not have been possible.

I must name, first of all, in this context, my supervisor in this work, Professor Dr. Maheswar Neog. I am proud of noting that this eminent scholar who had also been my direct teacher in the post-graduate level, agreed to guide me in the work. Though in the later stage of this work, he was away in the Punjabi University, Patiala, even then, he continued to guide and inspire me from that far place through his letters, which he found time to write in his awfully busy life of scholarly pursuit. In the final stage of my work, when he returned to Guwahati on his completion of the term there, he came back in ill health. Even then I was rather surprised to see that he was at no time unenthusiastic or uninspiring in his supervision of my written chapters. He never made a show of his tiredness or sickness; and was, on the contrary, encouraging me to be up and doing, while nodding assent to some of my opinions or expressing his dissent or suggesting changes, to some other observations. Besides, he made available to me many of the rare books of this subject, preserved in his rich personal library. No word of thanks really can do justice to this kind of help.
Next to him, I am grateful to my husband, Dr. Gobinda Prasad Sarma. He had not only relieved me partly of my household responsibilities for engaging myself in this task, but had also encouraged me to devote myself to serious studies of this sort. He had helped me by prescribing critical books on biography in English; and also in choosing and acquiring the method I have adopted for this study.

I am thankful to the Directors of the Historical and Antiquarian Studies, Assam, and Kamrup Anusandhan Samiti, both based in Guwahati, for making available to me many rare books of the seventeenth, eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. I am also thankful to the librarians of Guwahati University Library, State Central Library, Guwahati, and District Library, Guwahati, for helping me with many valuable books of their libraries. The Principal of my college, Mrs. A. Rasul, and the librarian of our College Library also helped me with the loan of many books in the subject; and I convey my thanks to them for this.

Certain individuals who happen to be my well-wishers, came to my help by lending me a few books that I could not find anywhere. One of them is Professor Dr. Praphulladatta Goswami, the reputed writer and folklorist. With constant inquiries of my progress in the work, he was all the while encouraging me to complete it. I would remain grateful to him for this. Another person who lent me a few books is Mr. Upendranath Barkatak, I must thank him, too.
Among those who took keen personal interest in my work and its progress, and almost forced me to complete it with their words of enquiry about my progress in every step, mention must be made of Mr. Ranjit Kumar Deb Goswami, Mrs. Aradhana Goswami, Mrs. Anima Dutta, and Mr. Hirendranath Dutta. Some of my colleagues and friends in Mandique Girls' College, too, played a very helpful role in the completion of my work; and I am also thankful to them. These are Mrs. Saroj Barua, Mrs. Aziza Ahmed, Dr. Manjumala Das, Dr. Renu Goswami, Mrs. Beni Barua and Dr. Saraju Das.

Last of all, I am thankful to my two children, Atanu (13) and Sagarika (8), who sacrificed a lot of their share of the enjoyment of my company, thus helping me to pay more attention to my study. They even relieved me of some of my household works, whenever and wherever it was possible.

Gauhati University Campus
2 August 1983

Anjali Sarma