The Brontë sisters, painted by their brother Branwell, c. 1835.
From left to right are Anne, Emily and Charlotte, with a painted-out space in the background which probably once held a self-portrait of Branwell himself. From Brian Wilks, The Brontës (London: Hamlyn, 1976), p. 100.