ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Inspiration, eternal or divine support, mental push up of respected persons are never out-flown from either life-swing or life-function; direct or indirect; mental or physical; visible or invisible; curve or straight; simply it works in every action of mental and physical behaviour provided it is supported by work strengthened by high spirit and due sincerity. Swami Vivekananda said “Purity, patience, and perseverance are the three essentials to success, and above all–love. This is the whole of religion; doctrines, or dogmas, or rituals, or books, or temples, or forms, are but secondary details”.

I do not know in what form I will convey the gratitude to my teachers and other respected persons who have contributed many things in my life though they may not be related to this work, but directly or indirectly contributed to come to this stage. It will be a point of insincerity on my part if I do not mention at least some of them. Dates back to school, my school teachers whose inspiration and loving words inspired me to study with devotion and sincerity can never be forgotten. One of my school teachers Shri Umesh Chandra Ray (late) told me, ‘If you have will, there will always be a way’. His this line helped me to face various difficulties of life, in spite of the fact that financial condition did not allow me to bear even 2\textsuperscript{nd} class train fare from my home town Hojai to Guwahati.

I must pay heartiest gratitude to some of my college teacher, who not only helped me in my study, but also in other aspect of life. I specially mention and pay my deepest respect to Professor Jishnu Dutta, Principal (retired), Cotton College, Gauhati, who was a source of inspiration to me.

In October, 1995, I joined Directorates of Census Operations, Assam as an Assistant Director. My association with the teachers of Gauhati University was renewed. Research Scholars used to visit our office for Census data and had discussion on its uses in research and planning. Once Dr. L. Chaudhury, Reader, Dept. of Statistics, Gauhati University told me why not I go for research. I am really thankful to him for the encouragement he impinged on me. Finally I started working with my respected guide Professor Dilip C. Nath, the than Head of the Department Statistics, Gauhati University. I express my gratitude for his kind acceptance to work under him.

During my work apart from my guide, whose effective guidance has helped to work and prepare this thesis, I would like to pay my sincere gratitude to my boss Shri J. K. Banthia, IAS, Registrar
General and Census Commissioner, India (repatriated), whose constant inspiration helped to work on Assam. Dr. D. K. Roy Chaudhury, Assistant Registrar General, Office of Registrar General and Census Commissioner, India helped me in providing books on various issues of mortality, I pay my whole hearted respect to him. Dr. Arbind Pandey, Director, ICMR also inspired me to complete the work, I am also grateful to him. I convey my sincere regard and compliment to Dr. Tom Mack Devid, International Program Center(IPC), Washington DC, who helped me in providing books on Demography and other materials while I was there in Washington during 2001 and afterwards.

At last, not the least, I pay may heartiest thankful to various staff of Gauhati University who are associated with the work of research for kind cooperation and dedicated service.

With regards to all with a message that I experienced

"Difficulties will come, but they do not last for ever
You will see that they pass away like water under a bridge."
