REFERENCES

Anon (2001a). The State of Forest Report, Forest Survey of India, Ministry of Environment, Govt. of India.

Barkhordari, J. and Mehrjerdi, M. Zare (2006). Importance of GIS ability in erosion and sediment study of sub basins dependent. 2nd Soil and Water resources management and watershed management National Conference, Kerman, 1167-1172p.

220

Brost, H. L. and Russel, Woodburn. 1940. Soil Cons. Service technical Paper 3 August

Decocq, G; M. Ambert, D. Alard; R. Saguez; A. Wattez-Franger; B. Foccault, A. Delphis-Dusollier and J. Bardent (2004). Plant diversity in a managed temperate deciduous forest: Understory resource to two silvicultural systems. 5: 247-258.

Government of Assam( )Statistical handbook of Assam, various issues. Govt. of Assam

228

Miyawaki, A. (1993). Restoration of native forest from Japan to Malaysia. In H. Leith and M.
Lohman (eds.). Restoration of Tropical Forest Ecosystems. Dordrecht: Kluwer Academic plantations in the humid Neotropics: A comparison of early growth, pest damage and Moseley, R. K. 2006. Historical landscape change in north western Yunnan, China :Using repeat photography to assess the perceptions and realities of biodiversity loss. *Mountain history: Vegetation patterns of a New England sand plain.” Ecological Monographs 66: 345-365.

for genetic gesource: are sandal resources safe in our sanctuaries? In *Proceedings of Nambiar, K. K. M., Payal, Rajbans and Mishra, R. R. (1968). Studies of relative degree of improvement in soil structure under different grasses. Indian Forester 94(9): 533-540.

Irrigation and Drainage Engg.* 109(4): 419-434

232

Polo, M and G. Mery (1896). Deforestation perspectives in tropics; Pilot scenarios based on quantitative analysis. Colombia University Press, N. Y.

R Development Core Team (2007) R: A Language and Environment for Statistical Computing.

