ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

In the laborious activities associated with the compilation and presentation of this treatise, I convey my utmost, sincere and heartfelt gratitude to my most revered teacher, guide and mentor - respected Dr. S.C. Dey, D.Sc (Cal.), FZS, Professor of Zoology, Gauhati University, Assam for suggesting the problem and most arduously supervising the research work throughout the entire period of investigation. His unfatiguable energy and zeal for counselling is humbly appreciated in all the years of our fruitful association extending to almost two decades.

The author is a physically disabled person caused by severe Polio in both the legs and so has limitations in personal mobility. Straddled with such a handicap, a host of persons extended their co-operation and encouragements all of whom cannot be individually acknowledged but whose contributions are otherwise highly appreciated. Never-the-less, some injustice will be done without the mention of the following personnels who have done yeoman’s service and extended constant encouragements & help namely Late Madhab Ch. Baruah, Dy. Director of Fisheries (Research) and Dr. Mrigen M. Goswami, Reader at Gauhati University for the Plankton study; Dr. S.C. Pathak of NABARD and Dr. Munin Das of Guwahati for the gut analysis parameters; Dr. Abdul Mukit and Dr. Mohon Dhattacharjee, both Professors in the Deptt. of Pathology, Faculty of Veterinary Sciences at the Assam Agricultural University for ascertaining the histology and histochemistry elements and finally to Dr. Mahadev Choudhury of CICFRI, Guwahati Station, for the statistical works. Mention must also be made of Sri Doyal Das of Dibrugarh, Sri Bimal Hazarika of Guwahati and Md. Abdul Matin of Dhubri, all from the State Fisheries Deptt. of Assam, for their individual assistance in collection of fish samples and water quality parameters. The author most humbly expresses his indebtedness to one and all of them for their unstinted support and co-operation over all these years of investigations.

Last, but not the least, I extend my utmost appreciation to my wife Ms. Deepa Duara and to my daughter Ms. Sewalita Duara, who too have contributed their mite by their constant help; to my parents for their constant encouragement and finally to Sri K.
Shee for the illustrations and to Sri P.M. Goswami for taking pains in checking meticulously the typing of the final manuscript.

(HITENDRA DUARA)