ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is with great appreciation I recognize the support of my supervisor, Dr. Abhay Kumar Tiwari, for guiding me through this dissertation. You have been a constant support in my journey and the progress of my thesis has been smoothened by your endeavors. Your thoughtful insights have enriched my work and you have been a constant inspiration. I thank you.

My Doctoral Advisory Committee (DAC) comprising of Dr. Nitin Gupta, Dr. Pinaki Ranjan Bhattacharya and Dr. Abhay Kumar Tiwari had played a crucial role in the preparation of my PhD dissertation proposals. I thank you all. Without your unflinching support and sustained pressure my progress would not have been smooth. You all were instrumental in building the foundation of my dissertation. Thank you all.

A PhD dissertation is a work that requires support even from people who might not be directly linked to it. I thank Dr. Suresh Chandra Deorani, Vice Chancellor, ICFAI University, Dehradun and Prof. Prafulla Kumar Dash, Registrar, ICFAI University, Dehradun for providing me with required infrastructure to complete my dissertation.

To Dr. Subhadip Roy and Dr. Sanjit Kumar Roy I acknowledge my deepest gratitude for supporting me and suggesting ways to move my dissertation ahead. Whenever I got stuck with issues relating to interpretation of concepts and application of the same, you two came to rescue. Your guidance would always be appreciated. Thank you.

Mr. Rajdeep Chakraborty of IBS Hyderabad has been an old colleague of mine. I thank you for the efforts you made in collecting data on my behalf from your students. Similarly, I thank Dr. Abhilash Ponnam of IBS Hyderabad. Abhilash you have been a source of essential literature and theoretical materials without which my progress would have got hampered.
I would like to thank Prof. Peter van Ham of Clingendael (Netherlands), Prof. Pierre Pahlavi of Canadian Forces College (Canada) and Prof. Shmuel Shamai of Golan Research Institute (Israel) for their interactions with me. Prof. Pahlavi and Prof. Ham without your insights towards public diplomacy, I would not have been able to operationalize the theories. Similarly, Prof. Shamai, I express my gratitude for suggesting me papers that explores ways to measure regional identity. My dissertation would have not been completed without your support. In this respect I also thank Prof. Anssi Paasi of University of Oulu (Finland) for sending me his articles on regional studies.

My work was thoroughly dependent on qualitative and quantitative analyses. In this regard, I recognize and appreciate the contributions of all the participants of the group discussions and the interviews as well as respondents who spared some of their valuable time in filling up the questionnaires. Without your valuable inputs and feedbacks my dissertation would never be completed. I thank you all.

Last but not the least; I must thank Ms. Upasana Nayak for working graveyard shifts to help me in coding the data. Similarly, I thank Mr. Sattwik Majumder and Mr. Aditya Sen for helping me with final editing of the work. I express my gratitude to my colleagues Mr. Pratyush Banerji and Mr. Suresh KG for their constructive criticisms of my work.

There are also other individuals who have left a lasting contribution towards the completion of this dissertation. I humbly express my gratitude towards all such persons. Without you all, my efforts would not have borne this fruit. Thank you all.
