ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

At the very outset, I must make a clean breast that this work would have been impossible but for the incessant encouragement and assistance of my supervisor, Dr Kandarpa Das. His comments have always been extensive and perceptive, his support constant. Since the beginning, he has taken pains to supervise this research work all throughout, and he undoubtedly deserves my fullest gratitude.

My most sincere gratitude is due to the librarians of different institutions, especially to the authorities of National library, Kolkata. I am also grateful to the ever-helpful Iqbal from University of Delhi, for his excellent support. Here I also remember with reverence the writers, thinkers, critics, editors and commentators whose contributions have been incorporated in this thesis.

My friends and family were a key part of this process. Their support, patience, and enthusiasm have helped me so much more than any of them realizes. My wife, Jonalee, had been the unwavering source of strength and inspiration for me since the beginning. Finally, I dedicate my work to my children, Deeksha and Nirmalya. The countless hours I poured into this study was precious time away from them.
