ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am greatly indebted to my teacher and guide, Dr. Prafulla Kotoky, 'Sir', Retd. Professor in English, Gauhati University for introducing me to the world of Angus Wilson. But for his constant guidance and encouragement, my work, needless to say, would not have seen the light of day.

My thanks are also due to the National Library, Calcutta, the British Council Division Library, Calcutta, North Eastern Hill University Library, Shillong and the Krishna Kanta Handique Library, Gauhati University, Guwahati for materials on Wilson.

I am also indebted to Sri P.K. Sarkar of National Library, Calcutta and Professor B. Micun of NEHU for helping me to procure the texts and related materials, and to Mrs. Ranjeeta Chaudhury, Lecturer, Gauhati Commerce College for her constant encouragement.

I also owe my thanks to the UGC for supporting me financially with its Minor Research Grant. To Sri Kumud Deka for his help in typing out the manuscript and to Sri Arun Kr. Agarwal and Rajib Sarkar of Classic Corner for the printing and binding part of the thesis, my thanks are in no small measure.

Last but not the least, I shall be forever grateful to my husband, Sri Jnanjyoti Kutum for his untiring help in everything concerning the thesis - to my family, too, for bearing with me during the difficult days of the research, my brother Bhargav, for helping me out whenever I fell back on him and to my little daughter, Harshaa who in her own way understood that her mother was not to be disturbed.

Finally, this thesis is an outcome of my parents' undeterred belief in me and my capacity. To them, I dedicate my work.
