I thank God Almighty for giving me the strength and determination to successfully pursue this seminal work as part of my Ph. D research. I also dedicate this work to my parents, Thomas Mathew and Elizabeth Thomas, both of whom left for their heavenly abode after having seen my enrollment for this doctoral program. I am sure they would have cherished to see me successfully completing my thesis work. Their bountiful blessings have helped me in the fruition of this strenuous task.

I use this occasion to express my sincere gratitude to Prof. (Dr.) P. R. Wilson my mentor and my supervising guide. No words can describe the indomitable support and valuable guidance I received from him during the entire period of this association. I am deeply indebted to him for being that constant source of inspiration which motivated me to take up this serious and in-depth task.

The guidance and support I received from Prof. (Dr.) Jagathy Raj, member of my doctoral committee, is worth special mention and I am deeply grateful to him for his wholehearted support and rich guidance. I also acknowledge the valuable inputs from Professors, Dr. Sam Thomas, Dr. Manoj Edwards, Dr. Sebastian Rupert Mampilly and Dr. James Manalel, of SMS during different stages of my work, which helped me in successfully completing this work. I have received unconditional support from all the other faculty and members of the staff of School of Management Studies, CUSAT and I am obliged to them for their help and support.

I also acknowledge the unconditional support and guidance from my colleagues Prof. N. Ramachandran and Prof. Sudeep Subramaniam of Kochi
Business School and will remain deeply grateful to them for their contributions. I remember with gratitude the continuous and consistent support from my co-researchers, Vivek Menon, Anil Kumar, Sreekumar Pillai, George Joseph and Jackson D’silva. They remained as the sounding board for ideas. The arguments and criticisms that ensued have greatly contributed in getting this work to the level of fructification and refinement that it has reached.

My wife Sheeba and our children Tarun, Nitin and Tanya have been my pillar of strength. Their patient and consoling presence has enabled me to achieve this otherwise insurmountable task. I am deeply grateful to them for bearing the vicissitudes of my behavior and for being there as a constant reassurance.

My past and present students have been a constant source of inspiration and I do hereby acknowledge my deepest gratitude to them for having supported me during the different stages of my doctoral work.

Saju Eappen Thomas