I received encouragement, guidance, co-operation and help from different individuals and institutions in various ways in completing the work and to all I would like to express my thanks and gratitude.

I owe my greatest debt and deep sense of gratitude to Dr. P.C. Goswami, Professor and Head, Department of Agricultural Economics, Assam Agricultural University, Jorhat, who supervised the entire research work. His guidance, suggestions and encouragement were immense help to me.

I am also grateful to Dr. J. Phukan, Research Officer, Agro-Economic Research Centre for North East India, Jorhat, who gave me valuable suggestions at various stages.

My ex-students Shri B. Charangia Phukan, Shri A. Bor Saikia, Shri A.A. Uogoi, Shri A. Chellana, Shri L. Duerah, Shri A. Deori and Shri P. Phukan accompanied me in collection of data. I thankfully remember their company and assistance.

I am also thankful to my colleague Shri A. Sarma, who helped to make necessary improvements in the language of the draft and to my brother-in-law Shri H.P. Bordoloi for extending necessary facilities during my stay at Jorhat.

My thanks are also due to the Director and research staff of the Agro-Economic Research Centre for North East India and my colleagues in Dibrugarh College for their encouragement.

I am also thankful to the University Grant Commission, New Delhi, for sanctioning a financial grant and to the Library authorities of Assam Agricultural University, Jorhat and Dibrugarh University, Dibrugarh, for extending library facilities.

I express my sincere thanks to Shri Achyut Surma, Research Assistant, Department of Agricultural Economics, Assam Agricultural University, Jorhat for drawing the figures and the map and to Shri Nejen More, Agro-Economic Research Centre for North East India, Jorhat for typing the thesis.

I also wish to acknowledge the help of my wife Shrimati Sharati Chaliha in typing several revisions of the draft chapters and assisting me in various ways to complete the work.
finally I must thank all the respondents and other inhabitants of the sample villages for their response, co-operation and cordial behaviour.
