CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION
Geographical background - the mountain system, its chief characteristics - rivers - the plains division - difficulties of movement: Climate - rainfall - unhealthiness of frontier: the hill tribes - their mode of warfare - weapons - their raids, causes: British policy towards frontier tribes.

CHAPTER I

THE PROBLEM IN ITS BEGINNING (1822-26)

CHAPTER II

THE IRREGULARS: EARLY PHASE §(1826-36)
Aggressions by Bhutias - the massacre at Rangighor, operations against Khasis: Irregulars found suitable in Lower Assam - Shan Militia formed: Proposals made to augment Sylhet Light Infantry - Swinton's plan to attack irregulars turned down by Bentinck - Gurkhas enlisted,

CHAPTER III

TOWARDS EXPANSION (1836-40)

CHAPTER IV

READJUSTMENT (1839-44)

Insufficiency of troops in Lower Assam: Garo outrages - additions urged: Policy towards hill tribes changed - additions negatived: Defence of Maga frontier adversely affected

APPENDIX A: Statement showing average monthly expenses of Local Corps and Irregulars during 1843-44.

CHAPTER V

POLICE MILITIA (1844-57)

CHAPTER VI

EASTERN FRONTIER BRIGADE (1857-64)

Repercussions of the Mutiny - precautionary measures: European Naval Brigade despatched - followed by European Artillery Company; Reorganisation of Bengal Army extended to North-East Frontier - Native Infantry reduced; their composition - Native Artillery, an exception; Reduction of 43rd Regiment proved impracticable; Early proposals for frontier defence; Jenkins recommended retention of Militia and restoration to strength of Regulars; Hopkinson's proposal for two additional Regiments - endorsed by Lieutenant Governor of Bengal; Proposal negatived by Government of India; Showers' Report; line of defence - strength and distribution of Military garrison - military roads - appointment of Brigadier General proposed; Sir Hugh Rose's recommendations; Bengal Government desired no European Troops; Haughton on the role of Police; Eastern Frontier Brigade.

APPENDIX B: Distribution of Troops on North-East Frontier as proposed by General Showers, September 1862.

CHAPTER VII

FRONTIER POLICE (1864-66)

Frontier posts against the Nagas - excessive duties of 42nd Regiment adversely affected its discipline - the state of 43rd Regiment - orders by General Mansfield: General Tombs' scheme for Moveable Columns; General Mansfield's proposal for Local Regiments - negatived by Government of India; strength of Regulars increased instead; Military Garrison

EPILOGUE

GLOSSARY

SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHY

MAPS

1. Sketch Map of the North-East Frontier showing distribution of hill tribes, 1822-66. Frontispiece

2. Sketch Map of South East Frontier showing lines of defence, 1839-44. Facing Page 130

3. Sketch Map of the Naga frontier showing principal outposts. Facing Page 170