ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to express my deep sense of indebtedness to my Guides Dr. Alaka Sarma, Reader in the Department of Political Science and Dr. Mini Bhattacharyya, Reader in the Department of Anthropology, Gauhati University who guided and supervised my research work. Their learned suggestions and encouragement is the essential force behind the completion of the present work.

I am thankful to Professor Sandhya Goswami, Head of the Department Political Science, Gauhati University for her blessings and best wishes.

I must express my heartiest gratefulness to Dr. Niru Hazarika, Professor and former Head of the Department of Political Science, Gauhati University for her valuable advice during the course of this research work.

I owe my thanks to the villagers of the villages that have been covered in the present research work for their kind cooperation during the field work for the study. I must also express a word of gratitude to those people and institutions from where various information was collected through interviews as well as informal discussions for the present research work. In this respect I must mention the name of Dr. Phukan Basumatary, Senior Lecturer and Head, Department of Bodo, Rangia College, Rangia for his valuable suggestions. Also my thanks go to the relatives and friends without whose affection and blessings it could not have been possible for me to complete this work.

At the home front, my wife, Gitimoni was always a source of inspiration for me during the course the present research work. She also immensely helped me in the computer works towards completion of the thesis. I am also grateful to my two daughters Tiltit and Mitil for bearing with me and thereby providing me time and cooperation during the tenure of my research work.
