Acknowledgements

First and foremost a special word must be given to my mentor Dr. Prakash M. Halami. I want to express my deeply-felt thanks to him for giving me an opportunity to pursue Ph.D work. The joy and happiness he has for his research is contagious and motivational for me, even during the tough times in the Ph.D pursuit. His contributions in terms of time, ideas and constant watch made my Ph.D experience productive and stimulating. I will ever be grateful for all the help and freedom to work he rendered that has made this endeavor successful.

I want to thank the present and former Directors, CSIR-CFTRI, Prof. Ram Rajasekharan and Dr. V. Prakash for giving me an opportunity to work in CSIR-CFTRI. I would also like to express my sincere gratitude for the present Head, Food Microbiology, CSIR-CFTRI, Dr. G. Venkateswaran and the former Head, FM, CSIR-CFTRI, Dr. Umesh Kumar and Dr. Shyamala for their constant support and timely guidance during the course of my research work. I also take this opportunity to thank all the scientists and staff in Food Microbiology department, Dr. G. Vijayalakshmi, Dr. Varadaraj, Dr. Anu Appaiah, Dr. Renu Agrawal and Mrs. Vanajakshi during my stay in department.

I would like to acknowledge my funding source Indian Council of Medical Research, New Delhi, India, for providing me senior research fellowship that made my Ph.D. work possible. I also would like to thank Council of Scientific and Industrial Research, New Delhi, India for providing me an opportunity to work in CSIR-CFTRI.

I would like to share my happiness and heartfelt gratitude and thanks to few important people who has supported my research work; My heartfelt gratitude to Dr. Bhaskar, MMS, CSIR-CFTRI, for the financial help which made most of my molecular work successful. I am also grateful to Dr. A. Ramesh, IIT, Guwathi for his ideas, critics and advices which had been helpful in all my experiments. I also would like to specially thank Dr. S.V.N. Vijayendra for his constant support during my work and correcting my thesis and papers.
The members of Dr. Halami group have contributed immensely to my personal and professional time at CSIR-CFTRI. The group has been a source of friendships as well as good advice and collaboration. First and foremost, I would like to thank my seniors and friends, Badrinath, Raghavendra, Nithya, Leena cathere, Manjulatha and Shobha Rani for their constant help. This was the initial group that had helped me start my research work. I also would like to express my sincere gratitude to my immediate juniors; Yogesh, Padmaja and Vrinda for their help during my research work. My special thanks to Yogesh and Padmaja for their constant support during my hard times. I especially thank Ravali and Preethi for their support and helpful nature they have rendered during my final year. I also would like to render my deep gratitude to Shruthi, Catherine, Jamiee, Niranj, Louella, Sajan, Supreeth, Rohit, Kiran and Savitha for their support and help. It is the time to remember my dissertation students Vimal and Divya who worked with me during the commencement of my Ph.D work. I thank both of them especially for assisting me in the initial part of my research work.

I will be failing in my duty if I don’t acknowledge some of my friends in the campus who had helped without any kind of hesitation. My special thanks to friends of Food Microbiology, Deepak, Anbarasu, Akshatha, Sakthi, for their constant support. It is also indeed a great opportunity to thank friends of PCBT, CSIR-CFTRI, Gururaj, Padma, Santhosh, Shibin, Avinash, Simmi, Ramesh Staini, Lokes and Anila who had helped me in the initial part of my DNA work. I am also grateful to friends of MMS, CSIR-CFTRI, Ali, Bindhu and Ashok for their timely help.

I have been fortunate to come across many good friends, without whom life in campus would be bleak. My special thanks to my friends of other departments with whom there were arguments and fun. I specially thank my friends Ravi Kumar, Raghunath Reddy, Dharukesh, Kavitha, Rajsekhar, Mallikarjun, Harshavardhan Reddy, Saravanan, Swaroop, Vinod, Desai, Chandhana and Kumaresan.
My Sabbath days in Mysore were awesome where I had spent good times with my dearest and special group Pearls from Pebbles of Seventh-Day Adventist Church. I consider this as the wonderful opportunity to thank all the members of PFP that reminds me of the sweet memories of late night backdrops, song practice, lesson study and Christmas carols. I specially thank Mrs and Mr. Prabhakar for all the love and care during my hard times. I also render my heartfelt thanks to Mr. Eugene Simpson and Mr. Gideon David for the support and friendship they rendered. I cannot end this paragraph without thanking all the boys and girls of our PFP group for their love and fun.

I consider this as a special moment for expressing a heartfelt thanks to my family members, my mother (Vimala Kumari), sister (Geetha), brother in law (Riches Thompson) and little Pinkoo for all the love and care during this endeavor. They all stood by me and shared with me both the great and the difficult moments of life. I owe them much more then I would ever be able to express. So I keep it plain and simple and say I love you all. I also thank my aunty and uncle, Mrs and Mr. Israel, my cousin brothers and loved ones for all their support. A very special word must be given to my lovely wife Nimmy who has endured many days during which the thesis writing took precedence. Thanks for all the love and care. I also thank my brother in laws (Naveen and Naresh) and my parent- in laws (Nageswar Rao and Rani) for their love and support. At this moment I remember my grandparents without whose prayers and blessings I wouldn’t have reached this level and I dedicate my thesis to them.

Finally special thanks to the one- The Divine who made it possible and kept my spirits high during my Ph.D journey.
