PREFACE

Procreation is an essential for the survival of all forms of life in this world. For this, Nature has given sexual-urge to almost all kinds of animals including human beings at the particular slab of the age of each individual lives. In the ancient era there were no marriages, at that time the people were wondering from one place to another place for their livelihood and they were participating in sex with any woman without following appropriate method or code of conduct. Thereafter, the institution of marriage got developed in the human society to preserve the social harmony in this path. Marriage is pious obligation. It can be explained as a union between man and woman of which children born are recognized as their legitimate off-springs. The couple lives long together till they die.

In the ancient era there was no divorce system, once the marriage was performed it would be in force till the end of their lives. Now days, the divorce cases are escalating day by day. Divorce is the legal partition of two spouses by bringing an end to their vows that they had taken during the sanctified ritual of marriage. Divorce would ruin the marriage life forever and difficult for children to cope with separation of their parents.
Once a marriage is performed they should forget the mischief and lies, also always be have forgiveness, be cool, be lovely and express his/her inconvenience to other spouse in a convincing manner, which shall not hurt. The other spouse also must try to understand in a positive way, at the same time forget the incidents, which made his/her to feel. One spouse always compromise with the life partner for leading happy marital life.

In the present day scenario, the prejudiced nature, inferior and superior complexes are damaging the marital relations. If the spouses are in nature of quarrel blaming and pointing, the children also be brought in such nature, which will not success the lives of children in all aspects and it so impact on the society.

Due to the increasing of divorce cases, family courts have established with a view to settle the disputes in a rapid manner, in which conciliation is also conducted between the disputed couples and solving the disputes with amicable solutions.

In the olden days if any dispute arose between spouses, the elders of both side parties would be solved by mediation, but due to globalization and employment opportunities the joint families are demolished and that was due to the lack of proper conciliation between disputed spouses. As a result the disputes are increasing unusually day by day. For example in the year, 1960 only three divorce cases are filed before the court at New Delhi but it has been increased beyond 10,000 in the year, 2012.

The Researcher who is working as a Personal Assistant in Judicial Department and worked in the Family Court, Vijayawada, Krishna District for more than six years had observed the increase in the filing of divorce cases day by day and several spouses used to file divorce cases before the court on flimsy grounds. Therefore, the intention of present work is an attempt to discover the original reasons for mountaineering of divorce rate in India and find out remedies to curb the increasing divorce rate to build healthy society.

The endeavour and object of researcher is not only to reduce the increasing divorce rate in the society and give suggestions to the spouses for leading happy marital life in their lives as well promote a refined social fabric which is an ideal to the society.

*****

S. NAGA RAJU