CHAPTER I

SOME VIEWS ON UNIVERSALS AND PARTICULARS

(IN TYPICAL CONTEXTS)

1. Some Views

a) In Traditional Indian Thought with Existence as the Principle.

Relation between Universals and Particulars in Indian Thought.

b) In Modern Western Thought

CHAPTER II

VAGUENESS OF WORDS AND VARIETY OF USAGE - WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO UNIVERSALS AND PARTICULARS

Part One - The Method

1. Limitations

2. Some Examples from Different Disciplines

3. The General Approach
a) Semantical
b) Ontological

4. Universals and the Principle of Classification

5. Universals as an Instance of the Principle of Classification

6. Analysis of the Particular
   A note on the Principle and the Criterion

7. Contextual Differences

Part Two - The Application

8. a) Instances of Vagueness
   b) Does the word have the same reference in different contexts?

9. Variety of Usage
   i) Lack of Sufficient Analysis
      a) Where shall we classify the...
   ii) Some inherent factors in their meaning.
      A note on the relation between the Constitutive Meaning and the Principle of Classification
   b) Another Problematic case
CHAPTER III

THE EMPIRICIST THEORIES AND THEIR LIMITATIONS

1. A Retrospect

2. What should we understand by Analysis?

3. Realist View of Universals and Particulars

4. A Note on Functional Nature of Classification
   a) The Realist Stand-point
   b) The Realist Language

5. a) The Conceptualist Stand-point
   b) The Conceptualist Language

6. a) The Nominalist View-Point
   b) The Nominalist Language

7. a) A Neutral Position
   b) A Neutral Language

CHAPTER IV

NO 'ISM' IS SATISFACTORY

1. The Word and the Sense
2. The Classification

3. No 'Ism' is satisfactory
   a) Abstract Entities
   b) Psychological Theories (1, 2, 3, 4, 5)

4. Element of Relativity in all Explanations

CHAPTER V

THE ROLE OF CONTEXT

1. Context and Reference

2. Context and Universe of Discourse

3. Context - Its Formulation

4. Effect on Context on words

5. Linguistic and Non-linguistic Contexts

6. Universals and Particulars in Non-linguistic Context
   A Note on Individual

7. Logical Context

8. The Role of Context

9. Effect of Context on Words

10. Non-Individual

11. The Role of Context and the Principle of Classification
CHAPTER VI

THE LOGICAL STRUCTURE AND THE CONTEXT

1. The Nature of Logical Structure
2. Levels of Analysis
3. Surface Level Analysis
4. Some Examples of Applying Surface Level Analysis
5. Structure of Words and Things
6. 'Thing' as Individual
   A Note on 'Metaphor'
7. 'Word' as Individual
8. Conventional Usage

CHAPTER VII

IS UNAMALITY OF LOGICAL STRUCTURE POSSIBLE?

1. Logical Structure and Deep-level Analysis
2. Consistency
3. The Nature of Form
4. Logical Structure - Is it Unanimous?
CHAPTER VIII

TYPES OF LOGIC - THEIR IMPACT ON UNIVERSALS AND PARTICULARS

1. Types of Logic

2. Place of Words in Formal Systems
   a) In Mathematics
      A Note on 'Infinity'
   b) In Logic
   c) In Law-Statements
   d) In Logical Calculi
      i) Propositional Calculus
      ii) Predicate Calculus
      iii) Class Calculus

3. Types of Universals
   A Note on Formal Systems

4. Informal Systems
   a) Ordinary Language
   b) General Terms
   c) Collective Names
   d) Predicates
CHAPTER IX

SOME CONCLUDING REMARKS

1. On Defining Universals and Particulars
2. General Approaches
3. Designation
4. Criterion for calling a Designate, a Universal or a Particular
   a) In Epistemology
   c) The Criterion
   c) In Logic
   d) The Criterion
5. Form and Matter
   A Note on the Principle of Classification
   a) Its Qualifications
