Acknowledgement

It is a matter of great joy that I could successfully complete the present research work well within the minimum stipulated time under the able guidance and supervision of Dr. J. H. Khan, Professor and Head, Department of English, Sardar Patel University, Vallabh Vidyanagar.

When it comes to express my sense of gratitude for the success of the work, the first name that comes is that of my guide Dr. J. H. Khan. Since 1993 he has been my ‘lighthouse’ in academic matters. I did my post-graduation with ELT as an elective subject under him in 1995. Since then he has been my favorite teacher. I feel happy to take this rare opportunity to fondly say that he has been my friend, philosopher and guide. It was this favorite teacher of mine who encouraged me to go for minor research project with financial assistance of the U. G C. on enhancing teaching and learning of English through the ICTs in rural area colleges in the year 2008-2009. I successfully completed the project within the stipulated time and thus got myself prepared for this research work. I consider myself lucky to have this opportunity to do the research work under his guidance and supervision. I thank him for being so kind to accommodate me under him even though there was hardly any vacancy under him. He took all pains and acquired necessary permission from the university authorities to accommodate me under him. I felt proud that I had won the confidence of a person of his stature and that worked wonders propelling my best performance. I thank him for guiding and directing me to come out with something substantial on the topic. In fact, any word of gratitude falls short to express my thankfulness, yet it is my humble endeavor to give my feelings a corporeal shape here thus. Any seeming exaggeration is but the mistaken mirror image of my deep reverence to not only the best teacher but also a great human being.

I thank the Principal of my college Dr. L. P. Joshi for giving me permission to pursue the research work. His periodic discussions with respect to research and academic advancements have always encouraged me.

I thank all the English teachers of all the colleges where I conducted my research work for their valuable services. It was due to their help that it became possible for me to collect the required data for the research. Dr. Manish Pandya, Principal of Tolani Commerce College, Adipur, Kutchh, Mr. Sanjay Macwan, Associate Professor, Shri. Bhikhabhai Patel Arts College, Mr. Robert Simon, Assistant Professor, N. S. Patel Arts College, Anand, Mrs. Joe Marry George, Assistant Professor, SEMCOM, Vallabh Vidyanagar need special mention here. I thank Dr. Kamalnayan Parmar, Associate Professor, Shri. R. P. Anada College of Education, Borsad for assisting me in the toughest task of statistical tests and calculations. I am thankful to Mr. Pratik Valand, my former student and also a PhD scholar, for helping me with statistical calculations.

My beloved wife Mrs. Joe Marry George, an Assistant Professor of Commerce and Management in SEMCOM, Vallabh Vidyanagar, helped me evolve an insight into research methodologies by her scholarly suggestions and discussions. I thank her very gratefully for the keen interest that she took in my research work. Above all, I thank my loving little daughter Sophia, the source of all my happiness, energy and inspiration, whose innocent looks at me and my research work would fill my heart with bliss and that, in turn, would invigorate my spirits.
I thank the Almighty for showering all His Blessings on me and bestowing all vital attributes rendering my work its worth that it is.

Finally, I thank all those who directly or indirectly contributed their share to make this work a success.

16 February 2015

Samir John Dabhi

Vallabh Vidyanagar