ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The long process of transforming an initial idea for research into the entire thesis would be impossible without the help of God, so firstly I bow my head in gratitude to the almighty God for blessing me with this special event.

I owe a primary debt of gratitude to my supervisor Dr. J. K. Sharma, Professor, Department of Physics, M. M University, Mullana, Ambala, Haryana. It has been a great privilege and rewarding experience for me to work under his guidance. His guidance, support and encouragement through the course of my research have made it one of my most treasured experiences.

I am grateful to Dr. Jeewan Sharma, Assistant Professor, Department of Nanotechnology, Sri Guru Granth Sahib World University, Fatehgarh Sahib, Punjab. He was always a source of inspiration for me. He has supported and scrutinized my work at all stages, always pushing me to think more carefully, and consider more possibilities for completing this work. I take this opportunity and my deep sense of gratitude to thank him for all his support.

Next, I would like to thank Dr. Vandana Sharma, Professor and Head, Department of Physics, M. M. University, Mullana, Ambala for providing her valuable support for completion of the work.
I would also like to thank Dr. R. P. Chauhan, Associate Professor, Department of Physics, National Institute of Technology, Kurukshetra for providing the experimental facilities and for providing his valuable time for listening and solving my technical problems.

I would also like to thank Mr. S. C. Sood, Ambala College of Engineering, Mithapur for providing the lab facility in the completion of this work.

I would like to thank my parents Sh. Hari Chand Varma and Smt. Asha Rani and my in-laws Sh. Rajinder Pal Mehta and Smt. Ram Piari Mehta for their inspiration and encouragement.

Last, but not the least, I would also like to thank my husband Dr. Vimal Mehta for his constant moral support and encouragement for finishing my research work. My daughters Krishika and Oshin were a source of great inspiration for me during this entire research work. Finally I wish to thank my friends and colleagues for their moral support and camaraderie help.

Deep Shikha
