7. An experimental study may be conducted to know the influence of various innovative strategies of teaching on BCNFE learners at various levels.

8. Cost benefit analysis of BCNFE programme may be carried out.

9. Comparative cost benefit analysis of formal and nonformal learners in Thailand may be carried out.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

BOOKS

Barr, Davis and Johnson, Educational Research and Appraisal, Lippin Cott Co., 1953.

La Bella, T.J., Educational Alternatives in Latin America: Social Change and Social Stratification, Los Angeles: Latin American Center, University of California, 1975.

Sharma, Motilal, Non-formal Education: Some Considerations, Surat: South Gujarat University, 1977.

Srivatsava, L.R.N., Non-formal Education in India, New Delhi: NCERT, 1978 (Mimeographed).

UNESCO, Asian Programme of Educational Innovation for Development (Review of Non-formal Programmes and Structures and Guidelines for Organising National Sub-regional Workshops), Bangkok: UNESCO, Regional Office for Education in Asia and Oceania, 1979.

REPORTS AND DOCUMENTS

Bhattacharjee (1981) observed the effect of integrating skills (introducing a lesson, fluency in questioning, increasing pupil participation and using the back board) upon the teaching competence of B. Ed. trainees.

Chander (1976) made an attempt to investigate the relationship between the attainments in a training course with the teaching efficiency in the classroom and attitude of teacher.

Debnath (1971) found that age, experience, academic achievement and professional training were significant determinants of teaching efficiency.

Dev Nath (1971) attempted to find out some determinacy of teaching efficiency.

Gupta, Daljit and Ambasht, N.K., Non-formal Education in Action (A Review of the NFE Centres Being run by Field Advisers and RCE), New Delhi: NCERT, 1980.
Gupta, Daljit and Ambasht, N.K., Non-formal Education in Action (A Review of the NFE Centres Being run by Field Advisors and RCE), New Delhi: NCERT, 1980.

Harbajan Singh and Daljit Singh (1971) studied students’ perception of teacher effectiveness.

Iam Chaya-Ngam. Innovative Approaches to life-long Education: the Case of Thailand’s Distance Learning University, Sukhothai Thammathirat Open University, Bangkok, 1984. 20 pages. (A paper presented at the 31st ICET World Assembly, Hyatt Control Plaza Hotel, Bangkok, Thailand)

In a study of Sharma (1971) the combination of five predictors i.e., teaching aptitude, academic grades, socio-economic status, teaching experience, and age, in that order, appeared to be sound predictors of teacher effectiveness.

John (1981) did his on the influence of extra-reading habit on the reading and writing skills in English of VII students of Mysore city

Joshi (1989) conducted a study on the factors influencing English language abilities

Mathew, T., Adult Education Programme in Gujarat, Organisation and Administration, Ahmedabad: Sardar Patel Institute of Economic and Social Research, November, 1984.

Mohammed (1986) did his research on the diagnostic study of errors in written English of pre-degree students.

NCERT, Fourth All India Educational Survey, New Delhi: NCERT, 1982.

Office of the National Education Commission, The System of Education Sukhothai Thammathirat Open University, Bangkok, n.d. 15 pages (mimeograph)

Pathya Charya, Non-formal Education for the Age Group 9-14 , New Delhi: NCERT, 1979.

Patil (1983) did his research on the English language Achievement of Sivaji University arts graduates, with the objective to evaluate the English language achievement.

Patrikar (1991) conducted a study concerned with the causes of the deterioration in the usage of English language to be analysed by critical examination of errors in language performance of students and suggestions for improvement in the teaching-learning process in schools and colleges.

Prabhakar Singh (1984) conducted an investigation on “Factorial Structure of Teaching Behaviour”.

Prasad (1970) evaluated their professional efficiency of teachers from three angles: efficiency in classroom teaching, efficiency in organising co-curricular activities and efficiency in organizing activities related to school community relationship.

Ram kumar (1982) worked on an assessment of entering behaviour in English of pupils, aimed at obtaining the repertory of verbal association in the English language.

Rao. P. T. (1987) “Class room teaching of effective science teacher” tries to identify effective science teachers and to analyze the teachers behaviour of selected effective science teachers”.

Samantha Roy (1971) found that there existed some degree of positive relationship between the variables, teacher attitude and teacher adjustment on the one hand and teaching efficiency on the other.

Sangeetha (1996) did his research on “The errors in written English of VII standard student of rural schools of Palghat of Kerala”.

Saraswathi, L.S., A Case Study on Non-formal Education Centre at Thamaraipadi (for the age group 6-14), Madras: State Resource Centre, 1979 (Monograph).

Saraswathi, L.S., A Case study on Non-formal Education Centre at Thamaraipadi (for the age group 6-14), Madras: state Resource Centre, 1979 (Monograph).

Sharma (1971) studied the relationship between six predictors: aptitude, age, academic grades teaching experience, wed and socio-economic status and three criterion measures:

Sharma (1974) studied the relationship between sixteen personality factors and teaching effectiveness at secondary; level through descriptive study method.

Sharma, H.L., Development of Job Oriented Model for Orientation of NFE Supervisors (Reading Material), New Delhi: NCERT, 1985.

Singh (1984) worked on linguistic and communication abilities of high school teacher of English in relation to their classroom function with the objective to see whether the subject writing ability is adequate.

Subrahmaniam (1981) enthusiastically worked on the language skills attained in the English medium school in India.

UNESCO, Asian Programme of Educational Innovation for Development (Review of Non-formal Programmes and Structures and Guidelines for Organising National and Subregional Workshops), Bangkok: UNESCO, Regional Office for Education in Asia and Oceania, 1979.

Upamanyu and Sushma Arora (1976) to find out the influence if some variables on student teacher performance in teaching (STPI) in a college of education.

PERIODICALS

MISCELLANEOUS REFERENCES

La Bella, T.J., “Liberation, Development and Rural Non-formal Education”, Paper prepared for the Overseas Development Council, which was presented to the Workshop of Voluntary Organisations Concerned with Overseas Development in Asilomar, California, 1975.

APPENDIX IA
QUESTIONNAIRE FOR INSTRUCTOR

Serial No. :

Name of the NFE Centre :

Name of the District :

1. Name :

2. Sex : Male/female

3. Age : 